The tensions within the civil rights movement in the 1960s, between the lawyers and the activists, were significant. Martin Luther King was telling Jack Greenberg that he was going to march against injunctions. And Jack Greenberg of the [NAACP] Legal Defense Fund said, "No. You can't do that, or you shouldn't do that." And he said, "Well, it's not your role to tell me what I shouldn't do. It's your role to get me out of jail."
