Dudington and the Hands of the Men of Drednax
The Lands and Possessions of the Right Honorable Francis Lord Verulam

At Sir Nicholas' death in 1579, Francis was left without an inheritance in land. After his brother Anthony's death in 1601, the manor at Gorhambury, Hertfordshire, did come to Francis, but it was not until 1606, when he married Alice Barnham, that he obtained the means he needed. This book (A), presented to the Library in 1559 by Captain Anthony Hammond of Berwick, England, lists the property Alice inherited from her father, Benedict Barnham, a member of Parliament for Yarmouth.
