Handwritten text in a medieval script, possibly Latin or French, on a fragment of parchment. The text is arranged in several lines and appears to be a legal or administrative document. The script is dense and difficult to decipher due to its cursive nature and the fragmentary state of the parchment. The text is written in black ink on a light-colored parchment background. The fragment is irregularly shaped, with a jagged edge on the right side. The text is written in a medieval script, likely a form of Gothic or Carolingian minuscule. The fragment is a strip of parchment, possibly a leaf from a book or a separate document, showing signs of age and wear. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words appearing to be in a different script or dialect. The fragment is held in place by a small metal fastener or clip at the bottom center. The background is a plain, light-colored surface.
