Deed of Walter, son of Humphrey, <sup>Knight</sup> ~~Esq.~~, in which he grants to Sir Robert de Bures and Hillaria, his wife, for the whole life of both, all his right and claim in the manor of Borlee, together with the right of appointing the parson of Foxearth Church, which went with it, including a meadow called "Radebregge-medwe", previously granted to them. In return they paid him three hundred and five marks (about $30,000 today, in purchasing power); and they were to pay him no further service except an annual rose on St. John's Day (at Midsummer). This was a token that he continued to own the land, with the right to receive rent from it.

Dated at Aketonne ( where Bures lived ), the Sunday before the Feast of St. Faith, fifteenth Edward II (132 ).
