FOREWORD
THE INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP GARDEN
AND OLD MILL GARDEN

W H O would not be cheered in the midst of a beautiful garden, for inspiration comes to all those who rest within its walls. No time in history has the love for gardens been so prevalent. All of our hopes may at times be shattered, yet the lily has not failed to sip in the morning dew, nor the blossoms to show their beauty in the warm June rain.

So on and on we move to Grander Lands of Beautiful Gardens. May there be just one beautiful thought given to each of those who visit here, then we shall have accomplished sufficient.

"The International Friendship Garden and the Old Mill Garden were produced by J. E. Stauffer, J. V. Stauffer and C. L.
Stauffer of Hammond, Indiana. They have herein reflected their interest in beautiful gardens, having made extensive research of the most exquisite gardens of both America and abroad."

"They herein show the Progress of A Century in garden developments, with the Old Mill House and its Water Wheel, dating back to the early days of water power, and its modern Rock Garden, its Pools, and Water Falls."

"Most significant are the Favorite Flowers which are the important part of the International Friendship Garden. This Floral display includes the Favorite Flowers of the most distinguished people from Nations throughout the World."

"It is interesting to note that of the flowers chosen all but three are common to every Nation. It matters not from what land or climate, the love for beauty is much the same, and the flowers even though different by name are the same in description.
"You will see here a flower, which was chosen as a favorite by three European dictators, Mussolini, Hitler and Dollfuss.

"You may also see the biblical flowers, which are spoken of as 'The lilies of the field' in St. Matt. 6:28 and St. Luke 12:27, and many unusual flowers of historical significance, as the sacred
'Lotus' with many others which you will see throughout the
'International Friendship Garden'. "—(A Century of Progress.)

AUTOGRAPHS

Almost daily one or more of these distinguished people are special guests to this International Friendship Garden. It may be your good fortune to be present and witness the dedicatory services and get their signature on the space below.
EXHIBITORS AND BUILDERS

IT HAS been a pleasure indeed to have had the opportunity of exhibiting the Old Mill Garden at A Century of Progress of 1933. May we therefore take this opportunity to thank each of you of the hundreds of thousands who have expressed their admiration for this production in person or letter.

This year we have endeavored to add to the Horticultural Flower and Garden Show a most unique feature, the International Friendship Garden.

This exhibit represents more than twice as many Nations as the whole of the Fair.

We are deeply indebted to you, the most Distinguished Flower Lovers of all Nations for your kind responses and your many congratulatory expressions.

Having humbly compiled this book, we trust that it may be a token of international friendship and that the world might become friendly as flowers in a garden.

Sincerely
