There is more to life than playing a game of wits. "Knowledge is Power," yet no one person can hope to know all there is to know about the world today—and, even if it were possible, what a waste of useless knowledge would be stored in your brain.

This is a practical age and for practical purposes the question is not,

"How much do I know?"

but, "Where can I find what I want when I need it?"

The American Educator contains, in ten volumes, the accumulated knowledge of the past, brought down to the present day. It makes easily available all practical human knowledge in simplified form, when and as it is needed.

In addition, the Loose Leaf extension service, issued quarterly, keeps you abreast of the times by bringing you the latest and most important developments. The Research Foundation gives access to information on specialized subjects that may be necessary to your personal interest or needs.
