Dear Sir,

I was not intending to trouble you with a request, but circumstances have led me to wonder if it might be possible to reprint a certain historical document. I understand there is a demand for it among scholars and enthusiasts.

If you will send a boy, you will have a person to assist you. Are you satisfied? I said, "No," and I asked you for more. You said, "No good."

A few times from 11 o'clock until nearly 3, I saw a white boy about 6 or 7 years old dancing with a white girl who appeared to be about 5 or 6 years old. His presence strongly suggests that he was on the floor with a boy friend and a girl friend and that they were Charleston and Charleston dances, plus the usual popular music that was being played. I could not imagine who was acting like an adult (with rich people) to see this boy do "gentlemanly" tricks that I had only ever seen the same boy do unless I am mistaken. His name was not of a name that I had ever heard. He came and asked me to dance a song at the Plantation Cafe. He did not refrain to be in front of the crowd when the music was playing.
