Going to the front door on a house of ill fame.

After entering the vestibule, I ascend the elevator on the first floor, come outside, and go into a conversation with the elevator.

I asked the clerk if he knew of any girls to which he replied. "I will go.

I let this moment be an example in which I tried to be a lotharius in the vestibule.

The clerk said the lotharius spoke a few words, which on the lotharius they said, "Sir and I will take you up.

He then led me through the doors of the vestibule into the side of the vestibule, where he pointed, and then unlocked a door, climbing upstairs and said, "go right up."

We did so and were greeted by a girl who said her name was "Nick." and an elderly woman aged about 70 years.

We were ushered into a bed room, and Nick said, "I have just signed the preludium by Nick for the sum of $300 per year."

"Come on, who is going to pay first?"

We walked out through the front entrance of the hotel.

While in conversation with the cigar clerk, we met a man in civilian clothing talking to the bartender.

The cigar clerk told us that this man was a police officer, and was going out for a ride with one of the men of the Detectives.

From the appearance of this man, apparently was a police officer, and we saw him drive a vehicle with another man. G. C. H.

Inauguration

While standing at the bar, a man whom I know as "Pommit" came over and said, "Hello friend, do you want to go up-town? I have a couple of nice girls to-day." When I asked Pommit what the girls charged, he replied, "$7.00 and they will treat you fair."

Pommit ordered, and we arrived by 7.15 with a glass of whiskey.

As I was walking down the stairs I heard a knock at the door. I opened it and a man with a beard and mustache was there. He said, "Hello, Mr. Davies, I'm here to pick up your things." I replied, "Yes, please enter." He walked in and began to search through the boxes and papers. He found a letter and said, "This is important, Mr. Davies." I replied, "I understand, sir."

We continued to search the boxes and papers for hours. Finally, we found a letter that read, "I will meet you at the train station." I replied, "I will meet you there." We parted ways and I continued on my way.

One of these girls I met and obtained a warrant against on February 7th, 1918, who said her name was "Vick."

The other girl I met and obtained a warrant against at 3111 S. Michigan Blvd.

On Thursday, August 15th, 1918, who said her name was "Bessy."

We went both solicited to prostitution.

I was solicited to prostitution by Bessy for the sum of $500, who said "right in this bed room and let's jazz."

I went into a bed room, talked with Bessy and remained about two minutes.

I heard "Vick" solicited by J. W. and Denny to prostitution. She said "right in this bed room."

I said to J. W. and Denny go into a room with "Vick."

I did not hear the price.

We were let out through the 8 E. 72nd St. entrance.
In a few minutes the girls will meet you.

After going up to the third and on the third floor I was greeted by a woman about forty-five (declaring her age) who ushered me into a small room located in the center of the apartments first and of the first floor of number 10 E 22nd St.

Soon a girl came out of a tiny, square space, about twenty years old, and dressed as follows:

Dress similar to the previous one, short, come on the belt's line.

I passed two other girls walking about in the hall, way.

All the girls were dressed in street clothes.

I left via the 10 E 22nd St. entrance.
