A survey of Ulster with the Provinces - is in the Office of the Record Office. A Book of the Laws held in the Court of Eyre in 1603 is arranged by dates of the hearings with an Index to Names of men. A show Manuscript volume of Extracts of fines & leases from 1637 to 1641.

The earliest book which I find in the Register commences in 1637 & from it I made the next following Abstract.

[Names and dates are partially legible and readable, but the text is not fully transcribed due to the handwriting style and quality of the image.]
Refer to Wright of Stair's history of Theophilus Velters (1755) on 24th June 1758. He was a member of the Church of England and served as a member of the House of Commons. His life was marked by his devotion to his family and his church. He was a member of the Board of Trade and his influence was felt in the political landscape of the time.

I must call the King for the relief of his lands and have been at the defeat of the time of the Count with his hostages, that he could not deliver his rice. Wherein no man can indifferent that it is yours and your own. If you go to any place and the Count is off to any place, then the Count is not to continue for where he is to make an order. It is noble to lawful for him to substitute at any place in his land so journey shall to perform.
