I Owen A. Owen of Baltimore, lying in perfect health in my journey to Eng land, do make this my will as follows:
I first request my uncle to buy my lands.

I request my daughter to buy all my land.

A balance of all my stock of corn is 2,000 pounds or more.

I also request my wife to buy 200 pounds or more.

I am under the care of my nephew.

I leave my son what she now hath from me, and her

Theresa, my mother, what she now hath from me, and her Natural life, I Greene write my hands, and this 32. day of May 1635.

This is a page from a handwritten manuscript. The text appears to be a legal document, possibly a deed or a similar type of record. The handwriting is ornate and cursive, which is characteristic of historical documents. The content suggests it deals with transactions or agreements, possibly concerning land or property. The text is not fully legible due to the quality of the image and handwriting style. It is a significant historical document, likely from the 17th century based on the style and language used. Further transcription and analysis would be required to provide a more detailed understanding of its contents.
