I value this collection for the Memoir of the Primates at —— 30 Guineas. and if to this were added or made available the documents and References alluded to in Red Ink, the very numerous references in my Anglian Life, and the XIV. of the MSS, and the MS in my possession for the history of the Country Armage (No. 21, 1st), and the considerable extent of my references in my calculations for the Testing of the Country Armage (No. 21, 1st) and the MSS, would enable me to make a complete collection without scarcely any expense and to present the whole to you after a few weeks.

Mr. Editor,—In accordance with what I considered best calculated to advance the cause of truth, I transmitted to the Archbishop of Armagh a copy of your paper of the 10th, containing my letter to Earl Grey on the re-valuation of the Primacy. I did so for the purpose of public inquiry, not private correspondence; seeking honest and dispassionate correction, not unprovoked vituperation. I have been favored with his Grace's letter in reply, and as it is the first official answer I received, I lose no time in submitting it to public opinion.

His Grace requests that I would withdraw his name "from the number of those who wish to patronise a work," on the Records, History, and Antiquities of Louth and Drogheda, which I propose to publish, when the number of subscribers indemnifies me against loss. I have faithfully obeyed his mandate, happily without much injury to my list, as although the Annals of the Primacy are intimately connected with that County, his Grace only honored me with his name for a single copy. I presumed, however, this was under an impression that, the Primates name was a sufficient honor, and I was then disposed to think so. The Archbishop is further pleased to express a sensitive apprehension, that my illustrations of the long neglected records of my country will not be conducted with "that accuracy and impartiality indispensable in historical research." This fulmination of ecclesiastical censure demands some reply, and shall have it.

I thank the Lord Primate of all Ireland, for instructing me how to write history, and in return, for I would not be his debtor, I will endeavour to teach his Grace the courtesy of letter-writing. In reply to his sensitive misgivings, I appeal to the Reviews and literary distinctions with which I have been honored, and it curiously occurs that candor and impartiality are most willingly and universally conceded to me.

I now take leave of the Lord Primate, and I sincerely hope that the gentlemanlike feeling in which I have hitherto rejoiced to meet, may never be again forgotten; that I may find argument not spleen in the communications with which I will then consider myself honored; and that in continuing such inquiries, as I conceive may be beneficial to the State, I shall, at the same time, be permitted to retain the good opinion of such liberal and enlightened individuals of all religious persuasions, as have hitherto cheered me with their valued friendship.—Mr. Editor, truly yours,

JOHN D'ALTON.

HIS GRACE'S LETTER.

"Mr. Editor,—I have received your letter of the 10th instant, and I am sorry to say that I am unable to comply with your request. The publication of the history of the Antiquities of the County of Louth is an undertaking which I do not think will be of great service to the public, and I should be inclined to think that it will not be of much benefit. I am, however, willing to consider the matter, and I shall be pleased to give you my opinion on the subject as soon as I have had an opportunity of examining the work."

"Armagh, Nov. 12, 1831.

SIR,—When I requested you to add my name to the list of subscribers, to your intended History of the Antiquities of the County of Louth, it was under the impression that the work would be conducted "without prejudice or asperity;" but from the spirit and tendency of your published letter to Lord Grey, on a subject connected with the Ecclesiastical History of Ireland, (inconclusive as your alleged facts appear to me in their bearings upon the point in question,) I cannot persuade myself that your inquiries will be prosecuted with that accuracy and impartiality indispensable in historical research. I have, therefore, to request that my name may be withdrawn from the number of those who wish to patronise your Work.—I am your obedient servant,

"John D'Alton, Esq.

During the 13th century, Archbishop of Armagh, the 3 Deans, and the 3 Archbishops of Armagh, who were later elevated to the See of Armagh, were Clara Vaga, Abbot of Armagh, and Hibernia. The See of Armagh, however, is in the care of the Hibernia. The same authority (p. 67) suggests that this change took place in the time of Reuben of Armagh, successor of Albert.

1624 Sir Thomas James Usher Harris

For 384 years and 24 days, she was a school teacher in the Church of Scotland. Her contributions to education were significant, and she is remembered for her dedication to the profession.

Parliamentary Papers, 1834-7, 1837-8. Her work was very important for the success of the parliamentary reforms.

In my Usher family collection, an important document is found. It refers to the Ushers of Armathwaite, who are mentioned in the genealogy of the family.

The Netherley, with its extensive library, was a center of culture and learning. It housed a large collection of books, including many rare and valuable volumes.

The College of the Vicars Choral was established in 1628. The Vicars Choral were a group of canons who were responsible for the cathedral and its chapels.

1632 This Primate had an important royal license to acquire the surrender of the estate, a re-emerging name for the term of rents. Rolls 8 Cas. 1.

I have full notes of the grant.

SIR,—For the information of "S. M.," Wolverhampton, I take leave to say, that the martyred Primate of Ireland, Oliver Plunkett, was born at Loughcrew, county Meath—it is supposed in the year of 1631. He was descended from one of the most ancient and illustrious families in Ireland. The Loughcrew House of Plunkett was a collateral branch of the Fingal and Dunsany family. His family were despoiled of their property in the uprise of 1641. From his earliest youth, he was remarkable for the purity of his morals, and the excellence of his understanding. Obliged to seek in a foreign land knowledge which was denied him at home, he left Ireland in 1649, the year of Cromwell's arrival. He studied in the Irish Ludovisian College, at Rome, where he distinguished himself in every department of science; and having taken out his degrees as Doctor in Divinity, he was appointed public Professor of Theology, in the College of the Propaganda, which important office he filled for twelve years. In the year 1669, the Church of Ireland was without a Primatial director—the Primate, Edmond O'Reilly, having died at Louvain, a persecuted exile; in fact, all her Bishops, with one or two exceptions, were after receiving the martyr's crown, or were in exile. There was only one Bishop, Patrick Plunkett, the Bishop of Ardagh (afterwards translated into Meath), capable of doing duty. Several candidates were nominated by different sections of the Irish clergy, and by persons at Rome, for the high and important office; but the Holy Father, Clement IX., at length exclaimed—"Why are we discussing uncertainties, when certainty is before our eyes? Behold in this city of Rome itself, Oliver Plunkett, a man of experience, tried virtue, and consumate learning—Him, by my apostolic authority, I appoint Archbishop of Armagh, and Primate of Ireland." The precise time that Doctor Plunkett landed in Ireland is clouded in uncertainty, from the dreadful persecution that then raged against the Church; but we find him in the year 1671, accompanied by Patrick Plunkett, the Bishop of Meath, Oliver Dease, Vicar-General of same diocese, and Thomas Fitzimons, V.G., of Kilmore, making a tour of all the dioceses of Ireland. That he was a rigid disciplinarian is certain—thoroughly examining on the spot the allegations of all parties, firmly deciding in favour of the aggrieved, and temperately rebuking the wrong-doer. He was the last illustrious martyr to that miserable fiction, the "Popish Plot." Three priests, whom the Primate suspended, for grossly immoral conduct, with several Tories (robbers) brought over from Ireland, were the subpoenaed witnesses who falsely swore his life away. The horrid, but glorious tragedy of his execution took place at Tyburn, on the 1st July, 1681, in the reign of Charles II. Should "S. M." wish a more detailed account of the life, trial, and martyrdom of this illustrious Irishman, I respectfully refer him to "Duffy's Catholic Magazine," of 1848.—Yours,

T. S.
C., Manchester.—Oliver Plunkett was educated at the Irish College in Rome, and was selected in 1657, as one of the divines of the Congregation of the Propaganda. On the death of the Lord Primate (O'Reilly), in the year 1669, he was appointed to the Primatial Chair of Armagh, by Clement IX. Dr. Plunkett was a man of considerable ability, and a great theologian. There still exists an Irish ode, written by him on the altered fortunes of the Royal Hill of Tara. On his arrival in Ireland from Rome, as Primate, the Protestant authorities of that day at once perceived that they had to deal with a great and uncompromising spirit, whom no persecution could drive from the sacred path which his duty, as successor of St. Patrick, called on him to perform; they, therefore, plotted his destruction. That he was a true Irishman, and a heroic Apostle of the ancient Faith, is sufficiently attested by his death, which shall be remembered long by the Irish Catholic, as one of the most sanguinary "legal murders" that ever the Protestant Government of England perpetrated. In the December of 1679, Dr. Plunkett was arrested and committed to prison in Dublin, on informations sworn against him by two persons, named MacMoyar and Duffy, men of abandoned character. In October, 1680, after suffering ten months' imprisonment, he was removed to London, where he spent seven months in a dungeon, and, after repeated postponements, he was put on his trial, on the 8th of June, 1681, on an alleged charge of treason, on which occasion he was treated with every indignity that could be offered to the lowest criminal. The prosecution was conducted by Sergeant Jefferys, whose conduct towards the Primate during this trial was in perfect keeping with his antecedents as a Crown prosecutor. The jury, as a matter of course, returned a verdict of guilty. The venerable prelate, at this announcement, exclaimed, "Deo gratias." The Earl of Essex interfered, on his behalf, with Charles II., assuring that monarch that, to his own knowledge, the charges against Dr. Plunkett were all false. But the appeal for mercy was made in vain. On Friday, the 1st of July, 1681, Oliver Plunkett, Lord Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of all Ireland, was executed on Tyburn Tree, near London. At the scaffold, surrounded by the enemies of his creed and humanity, the demeanour of this martyred prelate was worthy of his high ecclesiastical rank and great piety. In four years after, his body was removed from St. Giles's Church, London, to France, where a tomb, worthy of such a martyr, was erected to his memory. His head has been preserved, and is at present in a silver case in a Convent at Drogheada. One of the witnesses against him, in a few years after his execution, made a confession, to the effect that all he had sworn against the Primate was false, and that he was hired to do so. This man's conscience smote him so horribly that he became an idiot.
