TO THE RIGHT HON. LORD GREY, &c.

My Lord,—In the last letter which I had the honor to address to your Lordship, I laboured to apply the Archdiocese of Dublino, those tests of ancient precedent, these evidences of frequent violation of those illustrations of the state of that See at various and distant periods, which I thought of importance to the present inquiry. I did so, my Lord, with the more confidence, as I felt assured that the Most Rev. Prelate, who now enjoys that dignity, would appear by his motives, and facilitate the honest and reasonable fulfilment of our expectations.

There have been, my Lord, Archbishops of Dublin, who have imposed on the credulity of Kings, and encroached on the prerogatives of the Crown. There have been those who are charmed, as having come to their province "not to feed, but to milk and shear their sheep." Those have been those who acceded to the dignity by simony, and maintained it by extortion. There have been those who distracted the government of Ireland during a whole century, or the social tranquility of a crozier. There were, my Lord, Arch-Prelates in that Diocese, whose mistaken zeal exasperated the mass of the People, and denounced their Friendship to meretricious persecutions; who, with the innocent prejudices of the peasantry, and spurned the most strongly insinuated of Christian virtues; who, unlike the Princes of Agharlon, were Ministers of imprecation not of prayer; who planted the banner of religious warfare over the yawning sepulchres of the silent dead, and, in a word, my Lord, who tainted our atmosphere with such exhibitions of civil and religious intolerance, as needed a political tempest to dissipate their malaria.

Not such, my Lord, is the country prepared to expect in him, who, under the auspices of your Lordship's Government, has been now called upon to preside in that influential situation. Although it has been of too frequent experience, that the liberal and honest mind of a sister country have become as petrified in the exercise of Irish administration, as if they were plunged in the waters of our own Lough Neagh; yet, my Lord, the Prelate to whom I allude, has left upon record, such evidences of a strong and thinking mind, such sentiments of peace and patience, and such aspirations of Christian charity, as induced me to fondly hope, even here Religion may yet be tried by the dove, and social happiness cemented by the diffusion of brotherly love.—Let our souls be our own, but our hearts in common.

I beg your Lordship's pardon for a digression, which, how ever, I conceived due to my subject, than to the judiciousness of the appointment alluded to. I now, my Lord, invite your attention to certain records connected with THE DIOCESE OF KILDARE.

1832.—There is an ancient rental of this See, drawn up at this time, when it was in the King's hands.
1832.—The Bishop of Kildare was one of those appointed to hold the Privy Council of Ireland in common with Mr. Pope to the King, and in which collection the Sheriffs throughout the Kingdom were commanded to be aiding and assisting.
1831.—The Bishops and Clergy of Ireland granted a tenth out of all Ecclesiastical Benefices to the poor, to be assessed, as it is expressly declared, according to the accustomed mode of levying the Papal assessments, as then established, and as the Papal laws in Hibernia de beneficis ecclesiasticis.
1832.—The Bishop and Clergy of Kildare granted a subsidy to the State.
1837.—A general subsidy, for the support of the Government, was granted by and levied off the Clergy of Ireland.
1831, &c.—Walter Wellesley, Bishop of Kildare, had been invited to hold the Privy Council in common with Mr. Pope to the King, and in which collection the Sheriffs throughout the Kingdom were commanded to be aiding and assisting.
1831.—This See was valued by an extent in the books of £25 2s. 6d. sterling, which is the total value of the See, as now contributed, by four yearly instalments, to the object of Queen Anne's Bounty. Several of the Dignities and Benefices of the Bishop of Kildare were valued at the same time.
1831.—There is no inquisition of this date, as to the possessors of the Bishopric of Kildare.
1830.—In the inquisition of the See of Kilkenny in commendam with this See, as did his successors, to the year 1830, until deprived of both for refusing to take the oath of supremacy.
1836.—Bishop Cevryke was empowered by the Crown to retain the Deanery of St. Patrick's along with this Diocese, for account of the impoverished state of the latter by war and plunder. 2200 Pounds was granted to Prelate to defray the cost of erecting a greater state of poverty, by exchanging the principal portion of the lands of the See, with Patrick Sarfield (ancestor of the chivalrous Lord Lutgens) for some times comparatively of little value.
1836.—Bishop Daly inherited the Bishopric of Killenaun from the Crown to hold the Prebend of Clonmelan, & the Vicarage of Swonds, in commendam.

whereon certain Benefices were taxed, which it would appear were not included in the taxation of 1328.

1836.—In the Register, expressly on account of the poverty of this See, granted the Vicarage of Clonmelan, &c. to Bishop Neylan, which he held together with his Bishopric.
1803.—There is an Inquisition of this date concerning the possessions of the Bishop in the counties of Clare and Galway; but, however, I presume, regard property of personal acquisition.

1804, &c.—Bishop Plottwood held the Vicarage of Nant and Carrigey, and presented in St. Patrick's Cathedral in commendam, and the Bishop's dispensation for the same was granted. He held a petition to the Privy Council for some remedy to recover the lands aliened by his predecessor Caryke, but without success; and was therefore determined to have a grant to the spoil, by leaving his Bishopric poorer than he found it.

1813.—A third taxation to the First Fruits was made in this Diocese, when some other Benefices were included in the valuations of 1328 or 1338 were rated. It is worthy of especial notice, that in a Royal Visitatin Book of this year, where it makes mention of the Rectory of Clonlarey, in this Diocese, it states that Benefice to the value of £18, &c. "antique" at £30; yet although the Vicarage of Clonlarey is charged to the First Fruits at £3 Irish, the Rectory is not, I apprehend, now in any manner rated to that fund.

1815.—By a clause in Bishop Usher's patent he was enabled to hold the Archdeaconry of Meath with this See.

1836.—There is an Inquisition of this date concerning the possessions of the Bishop in the county of Kildare.

1813.—Bishop Goldam had power from the Crown to hold a prebend in the Cathedral of St. Patrick's, and a prebend in the Cathedral of St. Mary's in Kildare in commendam.

1859.—Bishop Price held the prebendry of Tully and prebend of Maynooth in commendam, and the King by private seal further directed that "in regard to the Bishop and the Bishopric of Kildare, so far as the same is not able to maintain the state and dignity thereof," the Bishop may hold in commendam Benefices to the clear yearly value of £400, &c. for his support and that of his maintenance.

1867.—Bishop Jones had license to hold in commendam five Rectories in the Diocese of Meath, together with the prebendry of Tully and the Archbishopric of Dublin, and the King directed that he should be fitted at the yearly value of £700 per annum. This Prelate laboured much for its augmentation.

1878, &c.—Bishop Dopping held the prebendry of Tully and some of the Rectories of the Diocese of Meath in commendam, and further obtained letters patent from the Crown of all the forfeited Rectories within his See to the use and benefit of himself and successors.

1861.—Bishop Moreton was permitted, expressly on account of the poverty of this Bishopric, to hold the Deanery of Christ Church and the Prebendry of Tully in commendam, a praclice which has ever since continued.

1702.—Various Rectories appropriate and tithe, situated in the baronies of Clan and Connell, and which had been forfeited in fee by the attainers of Earl of Limerick and Thomas Howard, as also other Rectories and tithe in the county of Carlow and King's County, forfeited by the respective attainers of Christopher Sheffled and Francis Fitzgerald, were confirmed to the Bishop by the pursuance of the Act of the 11th William the Third, for the perpetual augmentation of such small Rectories and Vicarages in the Diocese of Kildare, as the Bishop should see fit, in order to maintain his See, with the Bishop's consent, should direct and appoint. And in a few months afterwards certain lands of the Earl of Galway, situated in the King's and Queen's Counties were made chargeable with an annuity to the Bishop of this Diocese and his successors.

No return has been made as to the quantity of lands or yearly value of the bishopric, of which the Registry are preserved in the See of the lands, counterparts of Bishops' leases, commissions for valuation of Benefices, &c. Of its Benefices, on the map of the county of Kildare, fifty have been raised within several times to the First Fruits, and there remain wholly uncharged about EIGHT RECTORIES.

Three of which are in the gift to the Bishop, two in that of the Crown, two in participation between the Bishop and the King, and the patronage to another is contested;

THREE VICARAGES.

Of which three appertain to the Bishop, one to the King, one is in the gift of the representatives of the Earl of Mountfirth, and another in that of the Kemmis family.

TWO CURACAS.

All in the gift of the Bishop.

TWO PERPETUAL CURACAS.

One in the gift of the Marquis of Drogheda, and one in that of the Duke of Queensberry.

TWO CHAPLAINIES.

In the gift of the Bishop.

1634 De Bishop of Exeter held the archbishop's charge of Mews at Cumberley at the perambulation of the Bishop's Cathedral in communion with the King's Despatch. He preferred the King's Despatch to certain letters patent of the Privy Council for being kirtled to receive the Lords assembled by virtue of receiving the Lords assembled by the King's Despatch. He was therefore determined to have a estate and much gage in the Church by leaving his property in the Church more than he had at Wz. 392.

REVIVAL OF DISOBEDIENCE AND NONRESISTANCE

1. The time is come. We are to consider the question of resistance. The issue is before us. The moment is at hand. It is not a question of whether to fight or not to fight. It is a question of what kind of resistance to employ. The choice is between obedience and nonresistance. The decision must be made soon. The time is ripe. The moment is arrived. The issue is ripe. It is not a question of whether to fight or not to fight. It is a question of what kind of resistance to employ.
