For the year 1911
As President Hyde was leaving his office in Bowdoin College a few years ago one of his seniors met him at the door and asked permission to walk across the campus with him. After some hesitation, the young man said, "President Hyde, I want to know why it is that I have lived here in Bowdoin for four years without having made the slightest appreciable impression upon my environment. I am beginning to wonder if that is to be my life record." President Hyde looked him squarely in the face and replied, "Young man, you're a failure because you don't know your facts. You must know the facts of Christ's life and then you must know the facts of the life around you. When you square these two by your own endeavor you will be a success and not till then.

The practical sociologist,----perhaps redundancy lurks in that phrase,----must first learn the facts of Christ's life; he must then learn the facts of the life around him. From these two sets of facts, if he be earnest, will shape up a vision for his own endeavor. That is the first step that is the stage of dreams; that is the music-making era of life. The next step is harder but more important, for, according to modern psychology, unless those dreams are translated into action, they are fatal. With action, comes conflict, defeat, discouragement. There is therefore one further step for the individual who works with and for humanity,--he must keep, his mind on the ultimate result. He must keep in mind the large accomplishment of which the daily task is a weep part. In the phrase of that great stylist of our New Testament:"He must endure as seeing (that) which is invisible".
In the long, hard years of drearywandering, in the face of the repeated apostasy of his people, what kept Moses at his task? He had a vision of an Israel consecrated to the service of Yahveh; he "endured as seeing that which is invisible".
Through criticism and persecution and imprisonment and dour weeks and years, what kept the sensitive and highly-strung Paul at his task? He saw a world converted to Christ; "he endured as seeing that which is invisible". "How can you be patient with that child," I said to one of the workers at the Settlement in Philadelphia. "I keep in mind a picture of her as I want her to be ten years from now", she replied;
"she endured as seeing that which is invisible".

This program: of Knowledge of antics; Vision; Intelligent Action; Faith, is invincible. The materials and opportunity are all ours. In the words of Mr. Markham, read at the organization of the Wisconsin Social Service Society:

"We men of earth have here the stuff
Of Paradise. We have enough!
We need no other things to build.
The stairway to the unfulfilled,--
No other ivory for the doors,
No other marble for the floors;
No other cedar for the beam
And done of man's immortal dream.
Here on the path of every day,
Here on the common human way,
Is all the busy gods would take
To build a Heaven, to mould and make New Edens. Ours the stuff sublime
To build eternity in time.

If we "endure," the invisible gradually will come over into the realm of the visible. Service must be based on knowledge of the facts; it must be constant; courage must be unfaltering. Then things will happen.

This theory has been tried out. Its pragmatic value stands vindicated in the history of the thirty-three organizations of Cook County, Illinois, the objects of which may be summarized in this phrase: THE PROPAGANDA OF CHILD CARE.

1. Amanda Smith Home for Children.
2. Bohemian Old People's Home and Orphan Asylum.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

Chicago, February 13th, 1918

Rev. John E. Garrett,
Judge of Cook County Court.

Dear Sir:

In compliance with law, the County Board of Visitors for the County of Cook has submitted this report relative to the inspection of the maintenance, care, and treatment of children in the Cook County foster homes, the report being made to the county board of supervisors. The report is for the year ending November 30th, 1912.

Respectfully,

The Propaganda of Child Care

This propaganda falls into two separate divisions:

a. The Juvenile Court System

b. The Institutional System.

"The fundamental sphere of the Court System is, first, to meet the child upon the threshold of its abnormal condition and prevent its separation from a natural home by constructive supervision, and, second, to whose custodial care a child shall be assigned, if separation must come, and to make the legal assignment. The sphere of the institutional system is that of a guardian with all the duties, obligations and responsibilities implied therein. These two general divisions should be considered not independent of, but supplementary to, each other." These institutions, as the above list demonstrates, are numerous; their interests are fundamentally common interests in so far as they relate to results—the betterment of child life.

The object of this paper is to present in brief form facts which will make clear the purpose of one of these institutions, THE ILLINOIS CHILDREN'S HOME AND AID SOCIETY. Further facts may be obtained at the office of the society, 209 South State Street where Mr. Reynolds and his helpers are glad to present to the inquirer interesting records and "case-work" material.

Organization

The Society is incorporated under general law.

Ownership

It is owned by a Board of Managers

MAINTENANCE

Funds are paid per diem by the County for all children committed to them by the court. They receive (figures for 1911 which I think are still correct; however, they have not recently been verified) $15.00 per month from the County for each girl received through court, and $10.00 per month for each boy so received. Such payments continue while the child is in the Institution. I have before me the books for 1911, when this sum so received amounted to $3,514.40, the uneven amount being due, of course, to the fact that many children remain a fractional month.
Plan

The work of the Society is conducted on the so-called "Cottage Plan", the principle of which is to make arrangements by which children may live as nearly as possible in the atmosphere of the family life. It is, as many of us believe, an improvement on the old so-called "Congregate" plan, in which children live in large groups. This is in some cases inevitable and relieves a situation which otherwise would go unameliorated, but it does not so nearly approach the ideal as does the "cottage" plan.

Carrying out the same principle and as a further antidote to institutionalism, the Children's Home and Aid Society has come by a plan which has worked admirably. The directors recognize that the care of homeless adolescent boys and girls, and of other children whose homes are such that newer homes should be provided, should be such as to save them from delinquency and institutional experiences whenever possible. To this end the society is equipped with a Director, a Big Brother, a Big Sister and a special Big Sister for the colored boys and girls. The Big Brother has to his credit the reformation of "scores" (I use this word advisedly) of boys "where the temptation and human struggles of his little brothers have been as bitter and as genuine as those of Hugo's Jean Valjean."

The Big Sister has for five years been the teacher
The work of the Teacher in the School and home environment.

It is the responsibility of the Teacher to make the environment a place where the children can develop as human beings. To the Teacher, the children are not just isolated individuals. They are members of a family, to be considered as such. The Teacher must never forget the importance of "social" life and the development of individuals. The Teacher's role is not only to transmit knowledge, but also to stimulate and encourage the children's natural curiosity and enthusiasm.
and the confidant of hundreds of girls who have been sheltered in the Juvenile Detention Home. "In many cases she has found places for these girls to work and has been such a friend that, when out of work or in need of advice they have knocked at the bolted doors of the Detention Home in order to clasp the hand and look into the eyes of the Big Sister whom they trust more than any other person in the world".

(I wish I had time and space to insert here some incidents from the experience of these workers).

Regulation of Admission

From the Juvenile Court. The Juvenile Court, upon trial by a Jury of Six, commits the child to the Society to be under the exclusive custody of the Society, and to be discharged from the institutions of the Society in accordance with the rules thereof. Unless the Court sees fit to make proper showing to demand the discharge of a child, the institution must take the authority of placing the child out, as well as the responsibility of efficient supervision.

The following meagre facts are gleaned

Causes of Dependency

The great need for a more careful gathering of facts in this connection is recognized and emphasized by the Society and I act only as a repeater in calling attention to it as a "crying need". Service must be unintelligent and subject to great blunders all along the line until funds are furnished for the gathering of data. Meantime, these meagre facts are gleaned from the statements given to the Society by the Juvenile Courts committing dependent children to the Society. They are, of necessity, as the Director of the Society himself says, merely "apologies for statistics".

Placing Out and Supervision

The first work of the Society is to find foster homes,—permanent homes in good families,—for those children who are the legal wards of the Society. There are homes a-plenty in this great prosperous State where warm welcome awaits the poor desert waif; there, are, on the other hand, hundreds of orphans, or, worse, children whose parents and relatives are hopelessly immoral and unfit to act as their custodians. The work of the Society is to make the connection between these two.

Here again, I have a critique to record: I simply echo it from the lips of the earnest workers in the Society. There is no thought adequate investigation of homes or of the welfare of the child after it is placed. Accurate and complete statements of the results of the care of dependent children in free foster homes is almost unattainable. The Society is in the van in this movement and, merely as a beginning, has collected some brief and inadequate statement of results. The County Board of Visitors has drawn up useful blanks for all societies engaged in this work, copies of which I append. Child-placing cannot, of course, be standardized until such records are accurately kept and until the parents in the foster homes know that they are kept and that investigation will be systematic and complete. It requires clerical work, time, traveling expense, expert service, which is saying that it requires MONEY.

satisfactory standard for this important work. During the inspection of an organization, placing in society fifty-six souls, during the year 1912, the Superintendent was asked to explain the method of procedure in disposing of children committed to the institution's custody. The explanation revealed that children had been placed in Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Indiana and Illinois during the year; that no written applications or definite agreement on the part of the parties taking children is necessary; these homes are investigated by correspondence in almost every case; it was impossible to determine from the records at the institution, the condition of children so placed, or the number of visits made to them, and finally the superintendent stated, “As to supervising the children by visits, I go whenever the family requests me to come and sends my railroad fare!”

In another instance it was found that an organization sending out on an average of fifty children each year, makes no adequate investigation of people applying and refuses to place a child unless the party will immediately adopt it. This is absolutely wrong and unjust. At least six months should elapse after a child's placement before adoption, and within this time competent and tireless efforts should be put forth to insure that the adoption is right from every standpoint.

Upon this most important question, this Board has made some definite recommendations to the institutions. It is gratifying to know these recommendations have received favorable consideration, and in time a much more efficient standard may be reached. These definite standards are confined to the placement of children in homes other than that of the child’s own parent. As to the care and supervision to be exercised over children returned to parents, it is necessary to determine in each individual case, what this shall be. In placing children in foster homes nothing short of the following standard should be permitted by the management of any organization.

1. All applicants should be visited in their home, and a thorough investigation made in person by an authorized visitor of the institution before any child is placed in the home.

2. A written report should be made by the authorized visitor of the institution, upon all applicants investigated whether approved or rejected.

3. No child should be allowed to go to a foster home alone.

4. A visit should be made to the child by an authorized visitor not later than 60 days after placement, and at least every six months thereafter until adoption or of legal age.

5. Adoptions should not be allowed until six months have elapsed after placement.

6. Written reports should be made to the institution by the visitor of all regular visits made to children in family homes.

7. A record of all the above requirements should be a part of the child's record and permanently kept by the institution.

8. Placements should be confined to the state.

As a means of standardizing child-placing, this Board, in conjunction with a committee, appointed by the Illinois State Conference of Charities, formulated a series of blanks to be used by organizations. A supply of such blanks have been furnished all organizations included in this report, with full explanation as to their use. The following are samples of these blanks:

Industrial School.
The first necessity is of course to place the child. That is the big thing and must be done first. By the time that is accomplished, twenty more are waiting to be placed, each calling for equal urgency, each meaning that unless the child is taken up that day from its environment, serious physical and moral horrors will result. So the "daily round" goes on. Until more workers and funds are made available, scientific records cannot be kept. That is part of the Vision, however, and it will come to pass.

The Society estimated in the last rough attempt at following up cases, 74 per cent. of those placed were doing distinctly well; 6 per cent. doing distinctly badly; 20 per cent. not distinctly determined toward good or ill.

Supplementary Work

The Mary A. Judy Industrial School for Girls. This latest undertaking of the Society in the way of providing Home life and training for those of the "older" girls who require it, instead of placement in families, is in operation. The number of different girls cared for in 1911 was 17.
HOMES. Two children's homes,---the Du Quoin and the Evanston,---supplement the placement work. They serve as temporary homes, while the foster homes are being sought and investigated. They also serve as training schools. The children, naturally, do not remain long enough for systematic training. That is not the field of the Society. It must be incidental. The homes do, however, serve that educational purpose.

THE AID DEPARTMENT.

The object of this Department is to do for children having fathers or mothers in straitened circumstances what the Placing-Out Department does for children who have lost their parents. In interims where fathers and mothers are unable to look after the child, the Aid Department finds for it a temporary home, on terms suitable to the parents' limited means. This is an important and vital service to the child and to the parent, "since it has proved in many cases the effective intervention between hope and despair." The Department has two tasks:

1. To find "boarding" places for the children
2. To secure employment in families for mothers who must make their own way and who cannot bear to be separated from their one remaining interest in life—their children.

In one year, this Department has given office advice to homes 102 boys and girls; has visited 30 boys and girls in their has found work for 142 mothers, accompanied by children; has found board for 258 children. Is not this the Master's work?

This survey gives only a glimpse of the work of the Society. I wish I had the time and space to give names and particular episodes. The cold facts and figures, however, testify that "The Cry of the Children" has been heeded.
The children are the glory of our national Garden. Gradually we are learning that other things can wait a bit, the
if need be, but that a Garden must be weeded and worked NOW.
Making a Garden is "a man's job", but it brings a "man's reward".

"Our country is a Garden that is full of stately views,
Of borders, beds and shrubberies and lawns and avenues;
With statues on the terraces and peacocks strutting by,
But the Glory of the Garden lies in more than meets the eye.

For where the old thick laurels grow, along the thin red wall,
You'll find the tool and potting-sheds which are the heart of all.
The cold frames and the hot-houses, the dung-pits and the tanks
The rollers, carts and drain-pipes, with the barrows and the planks.

And there you'll see the gardeners, the men and 'prentice boys Told off to do as they are bid and do it without noise;
For, except when seeds are planted and we shout to scare
the birds,
The Glory of the Garden it abideth not in words.

And some can pot begonias and some can bud a rose,
And some are hardly fit to trust with anything that grows;
But they can roll and trim the lawns and sift the sand and loam,
For the Glory of the Garden occupieth all who come.

There's not a pair of legs so thin, there's not a head
so thick,
There's not a hand so weak and white, not yet a heart
so sick;
But it can find some needful job that's crying to be done,
For the Glory of the Garden glorifieth every one.

Then seek your job with thankfulness and work till further orders,
If it's only netting strawberries or killing slugs on borders;
And when your back stops aching and your hands begin to harden,
You will find yourself a partner in the Glory of the Garden.

Oh, Adam was a gardener, and God who made him sees That half a proper gardener's work is done upon his knees;
So when your work is finished, you can wash your hands and pray,
For the Glory of the Garden, that it may not pass away!
And the Glory of the garden it shall never pass away!

--Kipling--
