Dysentery and Protracted Diarrhea. — Dr. Page, of Washington, communicates the following to the Republican, of that city:

The following simple remedy, long known in the family practice, was recently tried in the camp of the New York 22d regiment, where they were from eighty to one hundred cases daily of dysentery, and with rapid cures in every case.

Recipe—In a tea cup half full of vinegar, dissolve as much salt as it will take up, leaving a little excess of salt at the bottom of the cup. Pour boiling water upon the solution till the cup is two-thirds or three-quarters full. A scum will rise to the surface which must be removed, and the solution allowed to cool.

Dose.—Table spoonful three times a day until relieved.

The rationale of the operation of this simple medicine will readily occur to the pathologist, and, in many hundred trials, I have never known it to fail in dysentery and protracted diarrhea.
THE EUROPEAN BRIGADES.—We would call attention to the note of the Mayor to Gen. Juge, and the general order of the General to the officers and soldiers of the European and French Brigades; both of which are worthy of their authors.

In PARIS—A Liverpool Cotton Merchant a party to it.—The Paris correspondent of the Liverpool Journal says:

The town is full of scandal, as it always is at this season of the year, and curious enough, the most scandalous story is that of a Liverpool man, late of this place, whose recent entrance into the holy bonds of matrimony, with a young and beautiful young lady, and the subsequent manner in which he has become attached to French names, has awakened the utmost indignation among the unco proper and virtuous individuals of which the English society of Paris is known to be composed. The gentleman in question had long been considered at the very head of the second-rate society gathered here; and, with the aid of a fair lady, who shared the labors of reception, was wont to see assembled in his drawing-room some of the most respectability-looking English individuals. Great, then, was the joy of the second-rate society, of which our friend was the leader, when his return was announced, a few weeks ago, and great were the anticipations of the young ladies as the dancing-ground, upon which they had hopped so long for husbands, was about to open again. As if to increase the difficulty of the matter, a letter of the most extraordinary kind was circulated through Paris; it contained a declaration of liberty, more peremptory and undeniable than any ever penned by the sons of freedom of any mother country in the world, which set forth that "the person with whom he had been residing for the last five-and-twenty years of his life, and whom he had been told was the wife he owned he was wrong, not standing in that relation towards himself," he had taken the resolution of separating his destiny from hers, as their tempests did not amalgamate, and, after five-and-twenty years' experiment, could never be supposed to do so. He added to this extraordinary communication, that he had a handsome income upon the quondum mistress of his heart and home (which sum he mentioned), he hoped his friends would be satisfied with his conduct, and that the separation would make no difference in their feelings towards him. You can fancy the thunder shock given by this communication to the second-rate society of Paris! The decayed Parthians, the poor little ladies, the old widows, the widows; the cheap English lord who goes to every party in Paris, were en deespoir to behold a good salon where board and lodging, fire and candle, were found for several nights during the hard winter; while the mothers and daughters, furious against the poor little lady, whom they used to cover with caresses in spite of her total ignorance of grammar, declared that the rich man was quite right to get rid of a vulgar little impostor with whom he had humperked himself; while so many charming girls would have been glad of his alliance; another portion of the English second-rate public felt the greatest indignation against the Liverpool Lothario, both for having lived with the lady and for having given her up, and these contrary feelings united to make the announcement of the marriage of the faithless swain, in England, to an English girl of good fortune and family, but the increased tide of indignation and altered its course. The whole condemnation now rests with him; and we cannot wonder, on reading the announcement of the ceremony in the papers, that she high-respected clergyman, who officiated for the occasion, should have found him so difficult a person to make marry, so that many gentlemen of the cloth were required "to assist."
St. Vincent's College.—An advertisement of St. Vincent's College, located at Cape Girardeau, Missouri, appears in our columns this morning. This institution is among the best conducted in the United States, and the yearly expense to pupils, for tuition, boarding, &c., is extremely moderate, as will be seen by the scale of published prices. Applications for admission by parties in this city, can be made to the Rev. Mr. Hayden, of St. Joseph's church, Common street.

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY.

SIR JAMES CLARKE'S
Celebrated Female Pills.
Prepared from a Prescription of Sir J. Clarke, M.D.
Physician Extraordinary to the Queen.

This invaluable medicine is unexcelled in the cure of all those painful and dangerous diseases to which the female constitution is subject. It moderates all ex. cess, and removes all obstructions, and a speedy cure may be relied on.

TO MARRIED LADIES,
it is peculiarly suited. It will, in a short time, bring on the monthly period with regularity.

Each bottle, price one dollar, bears the Government stamp of Great Britain, to prevent counterfeits.

These Pills should not be taken by females during the FIRST THREE MONTHS of Pregnancy, as they are sure to bring on Miscarriage, but at any other time they are safe.

In all cases of Nervous and Spinal Affections, Pain in the Back and Limbs, Fatigue on slight exertion, Pulitation of the Heart, Hysteries and Whites, these pills will effect a cure in every instance, all other means have failed, and although a powerful remedy, do not contain iron, calomel, antimony, or any thing hurtful to

For Forrestans take 4 ounces salt petre, 1 quart molasses, 1 quart fine salt mix together and rub it on the hams. Stack them in a tub and let them remain three days. Make a brine strong enough to bore up a potato and cover the hams with the brine and let them remain 28 days.

It would be well to stir them up in about 11 days and pack over again.
