Oct 25th 61.

Executive Mansion.

Mr. Bennett

Dear Sir:

It is with feelings of more than ordinary gratitude that I venture to address you a note, expressive of my thanks for the kind support and consideration extended towards the Administration by you, at a time, when your powerful influence would be sensibly felt.

In the hour of peace, the kind words of a friend are always acceptable, how much more so, when a man's foes, are whole
Oct 25th 61.

Executive Mansion.

Mr. Bennett

Dear Sir:

It is with feelings of more than ordinary gratitude, that I venture to address you, a note, expressive of my thanks for the kind support and consideration, extended towards the Administration, by you, at a time, when your powerful influence would be sensibly felt. In the hour of peace, the kind words of a friend are always acceptable, how much more so, when a man's foes are those of their own household, when bdesign and rebellion threatened our beloved land, our freedom & rights are invaded and our SACRED right, is trampled upon!
Clouds and darkness surround us, yet Heaven is just, and the day of triumph will surely come when justice & truth will be vindicated. Our wrong will be made right, and we will once more, taste the blessings of free-edom, which the degraded rebel would deprive us.

My own — natur
is very defective; have always tried to secure the best estate,
of all, with whom through life, I have been associated; and I repeat to you, my thanks, in.
Oct 25th 61.

Executive Mansion.

Mr. Bennett

Dear Sir:

It is with feelings of more than ordinary gratitude that I venture to address you a note, expressive of my thanks for the kind support and consideration, extended towards the Administration by you, at a time when your powerful influence would be sensibly felt. In the hour of peace, the kind words of a friend are always acceptable, how much more so, when a "man's foes, are those..."
The nation is one vast army. The hour of danger is at hand. The question before us is not one of attack, but self-defense; of peace, or war; of life, or death; of liberty or slavery. The hour of danger is at hand. The question before us is not one of attack, but self-defense; of peace, or war; of life, or death; of liberty or slavery.

My own... ever...