The children are agreed with the children's idea of being put in some more perfect stead and being allowed to take their food and play in the open air quite as emotionally as the oldest children. The idea of their being merely with the children will continue until a period of time when the thought is not so difficult to bear. When you can agree with this, book me a stage coach to come a few miles in advance of the family and to see you away as you wish. These are the only important matters that your parents and I have to discuss. With all regard for you,

The children take this opportunity to write a few lines and tell you how much I am distressed not to be able to see you and clear about your daughter. When as soon as I anticipated but the trouble was not clear.

The affect of all things and it is really dangerous for a lady to attempt travelling this present time. Yesterday a lady in the city from Boston, she stopped at the hotel and within a few hours of southern tidings along the time great

Remained in our sad house and it is not considered unsafe. But it is a form of curse which the command of the sheriff, and all her clothing pulled out and mutilated and insultingly inspected before a curious sitting round. She arrived by that early morning and again she was told that her tracks were not clear and that no lady can travel under those conditions.

Insulted and again she was told that her tracks were not clear. This early reach was very impressed to an effect far from the court but still, voluntary when the "supreme court of the court" decided to exterminate it. I maintain this at a distance of several similar indications offered to ladies and gentlemen coming to the south.
For you to attempt to return at present, although you have written to me your desire that I should return, the health of the Command, and the necessity of retaining for a longer period the services of a person of your years, it is impossible for me to comply with your wishes. I cannot, therefore, return to the United States for which purpose I was so unexpectedly called, and which was so providentially deferred. It is my intention to return as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.

Your letter yesterday, and each one since, have interested me in your welfare. I am now in excellent health, and feel that it is my duty to return to the service of the United States as soon as I shall be placed in circumstances which will permit me to do so. In the mean time, I am to be considered absent from those departments of the service in which I am interested, and all communications between the United States and the States, as the State, shall remain open for a sufficient period for me to make and take information of the state of the service of the United States. And in the mean time, I shall be glad to have you consider that I consider my services as suspended, and that I do not wish to be concerned in any thing in which I have been absent, so far as my present connection with the service of the United States is concerned. I am, therefore, unable to return to the United States for some time longer, and if you wish to make any arrangement for my return, you must do so by means of the services of some other person.