I can't make out what they mean,

BY

A Ticket for 18s.—a Sixteenth for 2s. and £6,000 for Nothing!

NEXT WEDNESDAY, (VALENTINE'S DAY),

The 14th of THIS MONTH.

THUS, THEN, IT IS:

Suppose you go to any Lottery Office, and purchase a Ticket or Share.

Well: what then?

Now suppose further, (and which must be the case) that it is either drawn a Blank, or a Prize on Valentine's Day, or that it remains in the Wheel. In either of these cases you will have your Money back, except 18s. for a Ticket, 11s. for a Half, 7s. for a Quarter, 4s. for an Eighth, and 2s. for a Sixteenth, provided your Ticket or Share be returned by the 23rd of February; by this it is evident that these trifling Sums form the whole amount of your risk.

Suppose I get either of the Six £21,000, or other large Capitals.

Why then you keep them.

Very true: all this I comprehend; but suppose no Capital or other Prize should be drawn on that day.

That is impossible; because Three Prizes of £2,000 are sure to be drawn on that day, in the first Five Minutes. This, you will observe, is an absolute certainty; but besides that, you have the chance of other Capitals.

You have explained all this very clearly: now tell me what they mean by the £6,000 for Nothing.

This is equally plain: each of those Three Prizes of £2,000, which are sure to be drawn on Valentine's Day, will be entitled to an undrawn Ticket for the next Day's Drawing; by this it is evident they have Two Tickets for the price of one; and therefore those Three Prizes of £2,000 (making £6,000) may be literally said to have been obtained for Nothing!

Your explanation is very satisfactory; I will therefore lose no time in placing myself in luck's way.

Do so; but also remember, that the Scheme contains Six Prizes of £21,000, besides a variety of other Capitals, Consols, and Money, and there are only Two Blanks to a Prize; and remember, that SIVEWRIGHTS' guarantee the truth of the above statement on their word, as Contractors.

Interesting Questions:
Is there any other possible mode by which I may gain, from a stake of a few shillings only, nearly Two Thousand Pounds?

Have I no ambition to make my fortune by a mode of adventure, where the loss is trifling, but the gain may be great?

WHILST with unfeigned sincerity I return Thanks to all who honour me with their Favors, I want words to describe the gratification I now feel, in announcing that on THURSDAY, the 6th Instant, the Ticket No. 4,248, a Prize of 20,000 Guineas, And the only Prize of that Amount ever Sold, Was Divided into Sixteen Shares, and every Share actually Sold to the Public, at the above Offices, where the Value was paid the instant it was applied for.

The extraordinary instances of Great Luck which have occurred before at my Offices, will not soon be forgotten, but as some boast of having Sold in the late Lottery the greatest Number of Prizes, I also may be allowed to exult in what I can now say with strict Truth, viz. That the Total Amount of Capital Prizes, really paid by me to the Public, greatly exceeds that of ALL the other Office-Keepers added together, and that the Tickets and Shares sold by me in the Last Lottery have averaged nearly Ten Times as much as those of any other Office-Keeper. These are Facts which cannot be disputed, and which justify me in renewing my Claim to a continuance of the Favor shown to the Offices of The Public's most grateful and obedient humble Servant,

JAS. PIDDING.

N. B. Several of the above Shares of the TICKETS AND SHARES Twenty Thousand Guineas having been sold to Females, to one of whom the sudden intelligence gave a violent shock, causing an alarming tremor and palpitation, with loss of appetite, it is particularly requested that those Persons whose nerves are not pretty firm, and who could not bear with calmness a repetition of such news, will not purchase any Shares at Old Guy's Lucky Corner, or at No. 296, Holborn, for it is improbable but the Grand Prize of £15,000 and £2,000, Besides 14 other Capitals if £1,000, £500, &c.

St DAVID's DAY, 1st of MARCH.

This Lottery, although the Smallest ever known, only 3,000 Tickets contains Prizes of £15,000 and £2,000, Besides 14 other Capitals of £1,000, £500, &c.

£15,000 will also be Sold by PIDDING.
ALTHOUGH it is a rule with PIDDING & Co. never to disclose (without permission) the Names of those who have Capital Prizes at their Office, yet the List of the Fortunate Individuals who partook of the Noble Prize of £20,000, drawn on the 6th Instant, may prove a satisfaction to some, whilst they are described in such a way as not to draw attention to the identical Person, but for the strict Truth of which PIDDING & Co. pledge their Reputation.

THE NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

KIND Fortune, with a liberal hand, behold,
For New Year's Gifts, bestowing heaps of gold;
Her Horn's the Lott'ry, teeming with such store
Of Prizes now, as ne'er were seen before.
Fives, Tens, and Twenties. Thirty Thousands rise
In grand profusion, forming vast supplies
Of wealth, abundant as the sands that sweep
Arabia's Deserts, or surround the Deep!
Ye favor'd mortals, now's the time to strive!
Lose not one moment, if you mean to thrive!
As independence, with content and ease,
Attendant follow, when possess'd of these.

CHARACTERS—DAVIE GORDON & SANDY MUCKLE-THRIFT.

Davie.—Eh! Sandy, Sandy! where are ye ganging 'tul in sic a muckle hurry, this morning? Gude troth, ye're liker to break your neck than your fast, if ye haud your gait in sic a fashion as that, mon.

Sandy.—Naebady likes to creep when they've gude news to greet wi', I ween; but ye're a daft carle, douce Davy, and wul crack your gibes, an ye lose your siller.

Davie.—Gude news, do ye say? Eh, mon, 'tis auld lang syne sin sic a thing fell amang us. And pray, Sandy, may I ken your errand; and wha's the lucky body ye're ganging 'tul? I've nae wish to stick clay to your shoon, laddie, but I've a sair itch to speer intu the reets of the buisiness.

Sandy.—Weel, mon, ye ken gude wife Gillespie, o' the Brigg, here. Davie.—Eh! sure do I! Her gude mon wur a tobacconist, and mony's the time I'v'e had a sneetchin for my mull out o' his canister. His gude wife is a tidy wee bit body. Weel, and what o' she?

Sandy.—Ye kenn'd her for a frugal lassie, ne'er sic anither saxty miles roun', I ween. Why, when her gude mon were alive, he ca'd her the apple o' his ee'.—Eh! Neebour, he'd say, didye but ken . . . . .

Davie.—Hoot, toot! mon! where are ye ganging 'tul!—To your story, and nae be floundering and woundering, and ganging back tul auld lang syne. Stick to your text, Sandy, and gang street forward wi' your tale.

Sandy.—Weel mon, she scrap'd a wee bit brass thegither, and lik' a brave lassie, she bought a Lottery Ticket.

Davie.—A Lottery Licket!—Eh! the bold quean; weel, and it were drawn a

Sandy.—Prize o'Twenty Thousand Punds, mon, as ye're alive, and now I'm ganging 'tul her wi' the bonnie news.

Davie.—Eh! there'll be reeling and jigging, and junketting, and feasting, I ween. Nae bad thing to speak a saft word or twa i' the lug o' the lassie. She's a bonnie piece, and the deel's in it, an she'll not mak' a warm bed-fellow now.

Sandy.—Gude luck tul ye, Davie, ye're ane o' the bachelor folk; but for mysel', I ken the best way wul be to gang the same road she has gang'd, and wha kens but I may pick up the gowd wi' the best o' them. I've conn'd the Scheme, and a bonny brae ane it is. If ye're wise, Davie, yell try too.

Davie.—I mean it, Sandy; but tell us a wee bit about the Scheme, laddie.

Sandy.—Eh! a bonnie ane. Why, mon, a Ticket Chance only costs 14 Guineas, and a Sixteenth 20 Shillings! but here's a wee scrap paper wi' tell us a' about it.

THE

Gypsey’s Prophecy

JENNY.—Goody Gossip, tell me, pray,
    For full long I’ve tarried,
    When will be the lucky day
    That I am to be married.
    In the tea-cup’s mystic grouts
    You can solve my anxious doubts;
    By the cards’ prophetic lore,
    Jenny’s fate you can explore.

GOODY.—Lassie, you must cross my hand
    Or my spell will fail me,
    If my foresight you’d command,
    Money must avail ye.
    Vain is all the Gypsey’s lore,
    Vain the aid you would implore,
    Unless her hand’s with silver crost,
    Your suit, fair maid, alas! is lost.

JENNY.—Gladly I’ll the means bestow,
    If you’ll tell me truly;
    Hold your hand out, Goody.—So,
    Now I’ve paid you duly.
    By your art, now, let me see
    Who’s the lad design’d for me.
    Is he handsome, good, and fair?
    Goody Gossip pray declare.

GOODY.—Thank ye! thank ye! now I see,
    (Aye! and very clearly,)
    You will quickly married be,
    To one who loves you dearly.
    He loves, and is belov’d by you,
    And bless me! what is this I view?
    Charms, indeed, your heart to fix,
    He’s riding in a coach and six.

JENNY.—A coach and six!—It cannot be
    The youth I love so dearly;
    For ah! alas! no wealth has he,
    Although he loves sincerely.
    None but him my heart shall own,
    Him I love, and him alone,
    So farewell, your Gypsey lore,
    Never will I trust you more.

GOODY.—Stay awhile, my pretty maid,
    ‘Tis the same, believe me.
JENNY.—It cannot be; and I’m afraid
    You’re talking to deceive me.
GOODY.—Your lover has a Ticket bought,
    With good fortune it is fraught;
    Time’s event I here behold,
    And see him crown’d with Lottery gold.

ODE

FOR

THE NEW YEAR.

Winter with his dismal train,
Snow, and sleet, and wind, and rain,
Nature's verdant carpet sweeps,
Chill'd with horror Flora sleeps.

Hark!—What means that noise I hear?
MARSHALL'd soldiers at their heels,
Through the crowded city tear
See the New Year's Lott'ry Wheels!

Ev'ry human care beguiling,
See the rich Contractor smiling;
Anxious Ceres' aid to grant
To the pallid sons of want.

Foremost in the throng is BISH,
To gratify each ardent wish;
Next is WEBB, with Guineas shining,
Oak-leaves with the Shamrock twining;
Then come HAZARD, SWIFT and PIDDING,
All in haste at Fortune's bidding;
CARROLL, MARTIN, HORNSBY too,
Join the Goddess' chosen few;
SIVEWRIGHT, EYTON, CARTER stand
With GOOLUCK 'midst the wealthy band;—
Fortune's fav'rite to dispense
The Goddess's munificence.

Mark the Prizes!—To begin, is
One of Twenty Thousand Guineas,
Which a Ticket may confer
On the bold adventurer;
Nay, kind Fortune has in store
Twenty Thousand Guineas more!
With Forty others—rich supplies
For her smiling votaries.
Yet from out the magic wickets
Only come Twelve Thousand Tickets.
Such a chance there's no refusing;
All the Scheme the People's chusing.*
Fortune courts you—come and try
For riches in the Lottery †.

*The Scheme of the Lottery is framed from the suggestions of the Public, as the Contractor took their opinions before he published it.
†The Lottery will commence Drawing 21st of this Month (January); contains Two Prizes of 20,000 Guineas, and 40 other Capitals, all to be paid in Sterling Money.
Lottery begins Drawing on VALENTINE's DAY, 14th February.

The Bearer is respectfully invited to purchase in the present Lottery, and perhaps the above Number, of which he may have either Ticket, Half, Quarter, Eighth, or Sixteenth, may prove fortunate; it is to be had at BISH's fortunate Offices, No. 4, Cornhill, or 9, Charing-Cross, where there is a variety, if the above should not strike his fancy, or be sold before he can get there, as the demand is so great, and hourly increasing. If bought before Valentine's Day, (14th of This Month) he will have all his Money back except 1s. for a Ticket;—1s. for a Half—7s. for a Quarter ;—5s. for an Eighth ;—and 2s. for a Sixteenth, provided it be returned on or before FRIDAY, 23rd of FEBRUARY. Three of £2,000 are sure to be drawn in the first Five Minutes; and as these Three of £2,000 will each be entitled to an undrawn Ticket, the Public will literally gain £6,000 for NOTHING!!! There are Six of £21,000 in the Scheme, and not Two Blanks to a Prize.

In several previous Lotteries, Numbers advertised in this manner have gained great Capitals.

Tickets and Shares are selling by T. BISH, Stock-Broker, 4, CORNHILL, and 9, CHARING-CROSS, who sold, in the last Contract, 1483..£20,000!—3142..£20,000!—3645..£10,000! besides a great variety of other Capitals.
Lottery begins Drawing on VALENTINE's DAY, 14th Feb: next.
