My Dear Sir,

Your Brother, Mr. Mahon, has been good enough to communicate my services to the Electors of 1830 by an order on you for £25. to be presented for payment on the 17th of February next. This Order he has given to prevent, as he is kind enough to say to me, writing with my disappointments in consequence of his positive absence from Ireland at the time. I hope to be able to convert it into money, but cannot succeed, as it is not in a stamp in the nature of an acceptance. Perhaps, if I send it to you, you would... permit me to draw for the amount at three months which would be improving me a very great favor indeed, as I am just now rather in want of money. Believe me, my dear Sir, very faithfully yours,

My dear friend,

We are detained here by our journey. I have only just returned from the Lemonist Election. I am obliged to send you the letter from your brother

I have enclosed a letter from your brother, which I intended to have given you in person, but I feel much obliged to you by writing one perfect. The letter is yours, your brother had requested it should be printed. Your brother has requested me to send you his respects, and to say that my respects are returned. He is very well and should return in a few weeks. He is an honest man, and I shall be happy to see you again. If you should wish to see me, I shall be happy to see you again. I am,

Yours truly,

Dear Sir,

I write to you first of all to say that I have received your letter of the 25th and am much obliged for the information you have given me. I am willing to do anything that is in my power to help you, and I will do my best to see that the matter is put right. I will write to the authorities and ask them to interfere on your behalf.

I am glad to hear that you are thinking of coming to see me. I hope you will be able to get here in time. I shall be waiting for you with open arms.

I have been very busy lately, and I have not had much time to write. I hope you will not think I have forgotten you. I have been occupied with a great many things, and I have not had the time to write as much as I would have liked.

I hope you will be happy and healthy, and I wish you all the best.

Yours sincerely,

P.S. I have heard that some of your friends are coming to visit me. I hope you will be able to come with them. I shall be very glad to see you all.

German Mahon of the above sum of Six hundred and fifty pounds St. Giovanetti & Wellman
I had written to Mr. Rittenhouse, now deceased, where I have been particularly preoccupied with the topic of your former communication. I was under the impression that the information you provided was of public interest and merit to be shared in a public manner. I cannot help but express my thoughts on this matter. The idea of moving the town to which you refer is, I believe, an important and urgent subject. The situation requires a higher title to the conduct of respectable attention of the public functions. I intend to bring this matter to the attention of the legislature. I am not aware who can afford to take precedence of him at least when the public welfare is involved. The ideas of public welfare are closely tied to the scale of representation. In order to be first properly defined, I think it necessary to address a request for the subject in question. I believe the above thoughts have addressed the act, or at least have called to reflection, and if subsequent acts have been learned before proceeding, I am of the opinion we should move from such a quarter.

I believe it good to seek the advice of those who have devoted themselves and their interests to the cause. If you are familiar with the matter I have written about, I hope you will be able to provide some assistance. I hope these thoughts will be of some assistance to you. I am writing to you in the hopes of your understanding and support.
and station you can only occupy now is a permanent position. If you do, you will receive more support than you at present perhaps anticipate, you will find a strong party willing and able to stand by you. Energy and ability are alone sufficient requisites to ensure your success.

And lastly that in me you shall find a firm and persevering cooperator. This letter, untensingly written in a hurried manner, is the first opportunity I have had since my return from the Continent of communicating anything about you. I cannot permit it to pass without expressing my regard for you and for your father, which, however, instead of any thing which I now think is deserving of the notice of a political party.

Your father's character I am sure to your satisfaction and the personal acquaintance I have had with you and your brother, makes it unnecessary to add any thing respecting your qualifications. I have, however, been authorized to offer my congratulations to you by the President, and I have the honor to inclose a letter or your father, which, I hope, will meet with the approbation which I am sure it deserves.

I am, my dear sir, with the highest respect, your obedient servant,

For Mr. F. W. Vandebosch

Darwin

The matter on which I have been so long the \textit{endemism}, parts of it deserve a slight reference to your kind notice.

I have no intention of offering a paper to the Linnean Society, but I have written to the professors of the University in this city, to say how much I appreciate the kind notice they have taken of my work, and to express my desire that the details of it may be published in an appropriate form. I am now engaged in the preparation of a paper on the natural history of New Zealand, and I hope to have it ready for the Linnean Society in the autumn of the present year.

More than this, whatever may be my own private wishes, your public wishes will acknowledge. I am not disposed to say anything, particularly when your Excellency has kindly permitted me, in the interest of the most upright and honorable man of office political sentiments, democratically opposed to each other at present, the only known candidate being

It is axiomatic that all personal considerations, high-minded and honorable, are such as would lead individuals capable of acting as they have done, and yet capable of acting as they have done, to repent the deed if it were only to the extent that it were done.

The same moment the public integrity is to be restored, the public interest is to be protected, the public security is to be guaranteed, the public honor is to be perpetuated.

The public honor is to be perpetuated.

The public honor is to be perpetuated.
