My Dear Mr. Rooper,

Believe me and you say that you are on friendly terms of intercourse with the O'Gorman Mahon. If so oblige me by being the bearer of this prospectus herewith to him as I am much mistaken in my opinion of him, if he is not truly and sincerely designed to promote any project calculated to do the poor service due to ameliorate their condition.

You know how much my humble service and strenuous efforts have been directed to the same purpose and that I have neither spared time, labour, nor expense. You will therefore explain every matter to him: If the plan now submitted meets support from the honest and independent friends of Ireland, there is no doubt whatever it will lead to important results to the country; and perhaps, as a step to reconcile all parties.—God grant it. I am desirous to enrol O'Gorman Mahon as one of its friends, and know his health influences, and I am sure he will exert both if he gives me his support.
I want an independent Board of Directors, half Protestant and half Romanists; one half Catholic, the other a Protestant; and the Board composed of gentlemen of wealth, honor, and integrity. The extraordinary Directors to be Lord, Sir, and private gentlemen of fortune and independence. I am at work for a long list of extraordinary Directors, though I am not so rich in my list of ordinary Directors, having but a Deputy Governor and three or four sorts of merchants in the list of the different classes. I propose as soon as I have five more extra Directors, to call a meeting of the friends of the project, to appoint them regularly, and to elect a sub-committee for solicitor, and to pass some necessary resolutions. I must be at three o'clock afternoon tomorrow at the Commercial Buildings, and will not enlist or lead up for any extra Directors before.

Mr. Sincerely,

P. Hennesy

Loudly and tented to conjoin the justice of first impressions which with me are seldom erroneous, therefore I say "Tiva!" to your health.

Since we last met, I have been down to visit your friends at Woodlands, where notwithstanding unfavourable weather, I had some pretty good shooting. What say you and what think you of our second Sir Robert in Ireland? Was he not acted like a good one? In common with very liberal Catholic and Christian inclined gentleman, I must heartily thank him and trust cordially with him future success.

Yours, My Dear Duke, Flattered and Happy.
My Dear Mr. Dodsley,

Let your good feelings be absent, and I deplore of the pleasure of seeing you when I call to have a square frame wrapped up in gray linen. I sit down just to tell you all about it. No one knows better than your grace, that although the play of features is constantly Learning with incidents, thoughts or passions, yet generally speaking, most people of any note, that is, with sensibilities and intellect more refined, develop above the ordinary amount of jaguats intelligence. Poxes of this reminds me of a "characteristic" because pervading expression of countenance. To catch this is the Artist's aim and if successful, he becomes renowned his fame and fortune are cumulative made, but how many succeed? Not one in a thousand!

Now your "characteristic" is not merely remarkable, it is hereditary also, and finding it admirably depicted in the accompanying portrait by Leslie. Today it flings up on the paper with hope to become it as good years' gift presents a Baer's privilege to look today into the fagade of St. Paul's (the only glass plain!?) in to them of unknown.

Carberry West Mining Company of Ireland
Adelaide Chambers

London. 18th Aug. 1852

Sir,

The Managing Committee of the Carberry West Mining Company of Ireland have, in accordance with the wishes of many of the Shareholders of the Company, directed me to enquire whether you are desirous that your name should still appear in the List of the Managing Committee of that Company. They wish to be informed on that subject, previously to laying out the paid up Capital of the Company in working the Mines.

I also beg leave to state that by the rules of the Company any 3 Members... of the Managing Committee may transact the business thereof, and their acts are binding on their Co-Committee-men; and it has therefore been suggested that as you are unable personally to attend the meetings of the Board you would prefer tendering your formal resignation of office to incurring all the responsibilities without possessing the powers of a Director.

Waiting the favor of an immediate reply I am, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

The O'Gorman Mahon
Mahonbrugh
Co. Clare
Memorandum

The Olym sold in the year 1851-2 certain portions of his estates in Clare Co. to defray debts.
There was a surplus over and above the amount of claims — that surplus became his property — and was vested in the funds, of which he was entitled to receive the yearly dividends!

Quere — what is the amount of that surplus? If you are it paid — he did not receive it.

I send you a copy of a letter I wrote this morning, sent to the Dean, my dear Mr.

...not feel I have not sent you a letter for some time, you will be able to lend me some books.

The month is ended, I doubt you must have some new information about the issue the town will be made.

I am really very sorry, the 23rd - I could not buy on the 23rd.

A short time ago Sunday, the 23rd.

C. M. Petmemks

My Dear Madame Muy.

...to say that nearly two years have passed.

...in the town, it is generally believed that Mr. D., who has accepted an offer that would have been in the town.

...at that time Mr. D. Agassiz's intention to the preservation of heresy being so far from being received by the electorate.

...as a confirmed candidate a surname of political and political understanding.

...in the event of a contested election, it would not change for him to single out the electorate, except in the possibility of circumstances of his being opposed by one person. ...be so as a result of this, I do not wish to advise you that the election could be affected by any engagement.
I knew, as he believed, he could not be an MP retaining the office to which he was elected, but offered to support him. As I am not an elector, my engagement to vote for the applicant, irrespective altogether of the altered circumstances of his case by the office being a candidate) cannot be fulfilled, but I have continued to support him.

Since then, the very full explanation given by him in the House on the night that regarded the Fergus drama, will not mitigate, if it even excuse the offence. I have no reason to believe he has been visited by anyone at present addressed, I may remember you that I myself am not in a position to know of any intention to come.

For the letter you sent me to be given, it will be thankfully received. I am not accountable to anyone from the Chapels, or others, as there is no place or any other thing to give, it will be thankfully received.

I know not how far the story extends that the observations in question were made before to me. If so, I shall not trouble them. I wish for the story in question.

I am, very truly, your obedient, humble servant,

John Temple

Leaving that measure so important to our friend friends was very mortifying in looking into the members who did and who did not vote. If their names did not appear in the votes on the Invalided Mariners bill and not being seen by any of my friends in the house led me not to believe that a purpose had been played by which we lost. He believes of this measure.

lost on that very important occasion

My dear Sir,

I beg you not to make any remarks upon this subject in the presence of your family, as it is only intended for your private information. I have been informed by the Treasurer of the Bank of England that the matter is in a state of uncertainty, and that the Bank is not satisfied with the arrangement made at the meeting of the Ditto and dealers. Mr. Smith, the manager of the Ditto, has been looking into the matter and has discovered that the figures given in the statement of the transaction do not add up. It is said that Sir E. Lewis was in the house at 7pm, and would have returned to vote against the bill.
