

placing the books upon the market. I knew nothing of what they call their "Auxiliary Educational Plan" until I saw my name associated with it. As I had had no such plan in view, I directed the publisher to use my name only in connection with "The Young Folks' Library." Prof. Norton and Dr. Henry van Dyke have taken the same ground.

Very sincerely yours,
J. B. Aldrich.
Aldrich

Boston, Mass.
59, MOUNT VERNON STREET.

Feb. 7, 1903.

President Harper.

The University of Chicago.

My Dear Mr. Harper:

I have referred your question to Messrs. Hall & Locke. My work as supervising editor of "The Young Folks' Library" came to an end with the completion of the 20th volume, and I have nothing whatever to do with Messrs. Hall & Locke's method of

35. Mount Vernon Street

[Faint, illegible handwriting on the left page]

[Faint, illegible handwriting on the right page]