Dear President [illegible]:

A few days ago I mentioned to [illegible] the fact that [illegible] of the College be made to be at Columbia next year in the Autumn. I think of appointing [illegible] lecturer and inquire as to whether we might not get him out there at least for conversation, if not for a course.

Mr. Angell thought that would be a most desirable thing to do and suggested that I write you about it on your return hence this note.

Bergson is now decidedly the most prominent figure in the philosophical world and is fast becoming a center of general interest.
Dear President Jackson,

I do not know what Bergson's abilities as a speaker are. I presume this could be ascertained from Columbia. I recently saw somewhere a favorable notice of a course of lectures which he had delivered in London, but whether in French or English was not stated.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Moore:

I have your favor of the 1st inst. with regard to Professor Bergson. It would be quite desirable to make some arrangement if we could. I am not sure that we could arrange for a course of instruction, but if he is the right kind of a speaker it would be very appropriate to have him at the December Convocation. Do you know what sort of a speaker he is?

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. Moore:

I have your favor of the last week with regard to Professor Peterson. I would be quite grateful if you would be kind enough to arrange for me not some that we could arrange for a course of instruction, but if it be in the right kind of a manner. I am not sure that we could arrange for such a manner as you suggest to have him at the December Convention. Do you know what sort of a speaker he is?

Very truly yours,
