

111 READE STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Dec. 26th 1889.

Prof. W. R. Harper.
Dear Sir,

You will remember my promise to you on board the S.S. Etruria to send you a copy of the book we are sending out to the American public regarding our work. The book has been delayed but is at last off the press, and I trust you will receive a copy this week. I want you especially to note pp. 37 & 38, which give a passing mention of my meetings among students of which I spoke to you, when we had time to converse a little together while crossing the ocean.

I have been very anxious for a long time to get an opening into the Universities of America.
I believe that the Lord has specially laid this work upon my heart, and if you could in any way bring about a meeting for me in Yale during the next term, I think that it might result in good. My plan of such a meeting would be an address on Salvation Army methods.

and Unknings, etc. But in such an address I have a chance of speaking of the need of consecrating our lives individually to God.

Hoping to hear from you on the subject

Believe me, yours truly, in Christ of Calvary

Howard B. Booth