Dr. E. D. Burton
University of Chicago
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Dr. Burton:-

The February number of the University of Chicago Alumni Magazine contains the delightful information that you have been selected to serve as acting president.

It is not likely that you remember the undersigned, one of the early boys or "pioneers" to enter the reorganized University. No matter. Being one of the Alumni I harbor tender regards for my alma mater and am concerned in her progress and prosperity and therefore I hasten to congratulate you, knowing that the University is entrusted to faithful, loyal hands and a capable and tried helmsman.

I am confident of this from an experience in which you were involved and of which I am sure you have forgotten utterly.

In the early days there was a voluntary class in Patristic Greek organized. An instructor, by a certain Prof. Root (I believe) lead. We read Luke for a while and one fine day the instructor vanished. Learning of our predicament you agreed to lead the class. The day we were to meet there was only one student present. This did not daunt you nor furnish a good excuse to play tennis, consult the President or watch the squirrels eat peanuts under the scrub oaks of the campus. That lone student belonged to those who were alleged to have rejected the thesis of the document read none the less that student now recalls with reverence the loyalty of the professor of New Testament Greek and is the more eager to extend him good wishes and congratulations on his distinguished appointment.

Sincerely, [Signature]

Dear Mr. Director,

The opportunity to learn at the University of Chicago for the past academic year presented the challenge of new ideas and methods in social science. If this is not the first year that you have renewed the membership in the University, you are well aware of the exciting and challenging opportunities presented by this institution. For my part I have benefited greatly since my first year in the University.

I am gratified to have been able to participate in the academic life of the University, and to contribute to the knowledge and understanding of the field of social science. I have had the pleasure of working with many outstanding students, and I hope to continue to do so in the future.

I am confident that I have gained a better understanding of the world and its problems, and that I will be able to contribute to its development in the future. I am grateful to the University for the opportunities it has provided me, and I look forward to the possibility of returning in the future.

Sincerely,

My dear Mr. Leiser:

I greatly appreciate your kind letter of February 28. The incident you mention had of course escaped my mind, but it is kind of you to recall it.

I hope you are prospering in your work. Chicago has lost a valuable citizen and the University a good friend in the death of Rabbi Hirsch. One of my first acts in my present office was to speak at the memorial service to him.

Sincerely yours,

My dear President Burton,

This is just a line to congratulate you on your appointment to the Presidency. At the same time I feel very strongly that I can congratulate the University also. I have always thought of four men as the chief builders of the University of Chicago, President Harper, President Judson, Dr. T.W. Goodspeed and yourself.

You will bring to your office not only your intimate knowledge of every detail of University administration but also the originality and initiative which you have shown in your publications and in the organization of the Library.

I remember the day that I first saw Dr. Harper. After offering me the instructorship in Latin with which I began my work in Chicago, he put his hand on my shoulder and said: "We expect three things of every member of our faculty: effectiveness in teaching, publication of research work and interest in the administration of the University." I have always remembered those words, and when I heard of your appointment I could not help thinking how notably you had succeeded in all three fields. You have one of the productive departments in the University, as is shown by the number of dissertations published by your students; you have published extensively yourself, and as Newman Miller and
I used often to say in the old days, you have been one of the best friends the University Press has had; and in addition to these things it was you who cleared up the Library situation and put it on its present basis.

With kindest regards to you and Mrs. Burton and with best wishes for your success from Mrs. Laing and myself.

Sincerely yours,

I was able to see in the old gallery. You have been one of the few friends who have been next to me, and I am very glad to hear from you. I am glad you have found the library situation very pleasant. I am very glad to hear of the present position you have been in at the present time.

With kindest regards to you and Mrs. Martin, and with best wishes for your success from the library staff.

Sincerely yours,
March 6, 1923,

My dear Mr. Laing:

I greatly appreciate your kind letter of February 28th. However excessive your estimate of my value to the University, it is pleasant to have you hold it. The work on which I am entering, though very different from what I had planned for myself, is proving very interesting and I hope we may accomplish something that may be a worthy sequel to what Mr. Judson did in the sixteen notable years of his presidency. Just now I am wondering when I am to find some one to take over the work you did so admirably as Editor of the Press. I would welcome a suggestion.

I shall always be glad to see you here.

Cordially yours,

Dear Mr. [Name]:

I am very pleased to have your letter of October 28th. However, I am sorry to hear of your decision to leave the University to pursue your work on my account. I am very much interested in the work on which I plan to spend my summer and I hope to have my notebook completed by the time I return. I am sure that my work will be of interest to you, and I hope you will find some time to read it.

If you happen to see Mr. [Name], please give my regards.

Dear Sir,

I am writing to inform you of a change in the department. We have been informed by the head of the department that the position of assistant professor has become available.

I understand that the position requires a Ph.D. in the sciences and a minimum of five years of teaching experience. The salary is competitive with other institutions.

I have attached my resume and references for your consideration. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

My dear Paul

I am writing to express my heartfelt thanks for your kind offer of help and to thank you for your kind words in your letter dated 6th October. I trust that you will have had a pleasant time in your travels and I hope that you have enjoyed your visit.

I am delighted to hear that you have been able to travel to various parts of the country and have had the opportunity to meet and speak to many people. I hope that your stay in the city and your visit to the museum were successful.

I am also pleased to hear that you have been working on your project and that your work is progressing well. I hope that you will continue to make good progress and that you will be able to complete your work on time.

I am very much looking forward to your return and to hearing about your experiences in the United Kingdom. I hope that you will have a safe and enjoyable journey home.

With all my best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Burton:—

Gratitude overflows my heart as I look upon the picture of your face in the March number of "The World's Work."

The whole world of Christian education is made luminous by your position.

Day by day I shall pray with strong faith for the University of Chicago and its God-appointed president.

Year ago, at Kalamazoo, I learned to love your father.

He was to me then, and is now, a perfect example of a Christian minister as we idealize him.

To-day it seems to me very real that from some hillside of heaven your father looks down with joy and satisfaction upon his son.

My dear Dr. Burton:

There are thousands of people in the United States and in other places who are rejoicing over the wisdom of the Board of Trustees of the Chicago University in electing you to the Presidency of that great institution. I am quite sure that in all that great number who rejoice over your election there are none who are more deeply appreciative of the honor which has come to you than Mrs. Taylor and myself. I should like to take you by the hand and congratulate you, and I had hoped that before this I would have had that privilege; but as our paths do not seem to cross as often as I could wish, I am sending you this line to tell you that both Mrs. Taylor and her husband rejoice greatly over this new and well deserved honor which has come to you.

Please convey to Mrs. Burton our heartiest congratulations, and tell her that we are afraid that now that she and her good husband have attained such dizzy heights of glory that we may lose them from our evening parties at the Wildmere. However, we sincerely hope that we may have the privilege of their fellowship and company, at least occasionally at that well known resort.

You will be interested to know that Mrs. Taylor has been very seriously ill for something over two weeks with an attack of pleurisy. However, the ministrations of two very conscientious doctors, and a very good trained nurse, we hope will soon bring her back to health. She is not yet able to raise her head from the pillow, and there have been some complications which have been rather dangerous but, as I say, we are hoping that everything will come out all right.

Might I assure you that if at any time I could be of any service to you in your work as the administrator of the great University I would consider it a great privilege. And while of course that may not be of any particular value, you may be sure that

Dear Dr. Burton;

It is a pleasure to express to you my very great delight that you have been honored by being made the president of The University of Chicago.

In every way, it seems to me, you are worthy of the distinguished service for which the position calls, and are fittingly prepared to carry forward the fine traditions of the great institution.

You have been rendering the cause of Christian Education a great service for many years and have lifted high ideals before our denomination. Ideals to which some day I trust they will come, though just now conservatism is a little too strong. Ideals, however, must be seen long before they can be realized. Other men will later enter into your labors.

I am happy about you and with you.

Dear President Burton:

As an alumnus of the University of Chicago and a former student of yours, I have been very much pleased at the turn of events which have placed you in the Presidency of the University. I had in mind to write to you at the time you were elected acting President, and now that the newspapers indicate that the acting presidency has been made permanent, I cannot refrain from expressing my pleasure.

I feel sure that this action is most agreeable to all those Alumni who knew the University under the Harper regime. Quite naturally, there must be new policies for new days, but a good many of us have felt that there might be a larger place for the vision that characterized that early period, and I am quite sure that a number of us feel that there is in your administration, much promise of the continuance of the spirit which dominated the University in those days.

My own experience on the inside of Universities, makes me understand clearly that the usual desire of the Alumni body to have their Alma Mater repeat continually the life which they knew, cannot or should not become the foundation of any University policy. But there is a spirit that characterizes educational institutions as there is in the case of individuals. Whatever new policies may be made necessary by changing conditions, it is in the expression of the spirit of the early University of Chicago that I think most of the Alumni of that day are interested. It is because of this fact that your election to the Presidency gives so many of us such keen satisfaction. I trust that your strength will permit a long period of service to the University and to the things she stands for.

Very cordially yours,

My dear Mr. Zueblin:

Accept my hearty thanks for your kind letter of July 26. I am afraid — or rather I hope there will be no inaugural. But I will send you my address to the Alumni and the June Convocation Statement that may serve the purpose in a measure of indicating where I stand.

With kindest regards to yourself and Mrs. Zueblin.

Mr. Hopkins,

Dear Dr. Burton,

We were all very sad to hear you couldn't share in the rejoicing and give your warm congratulations in person. But when the telegram came, we had a general rejoicing and celebration here on the island. We were all so delighted, and we are convinced it means... wonderful things for the University.

The request for the University and we are so glad and

Dear President Burton,

This is just a line to congratulate you on your appointment to the presidency. It is a fine thing for the University, as everybody here is saying. News travels fast in academic circles, and the record of your achievements in the few months you have been in office is a frequent subject of conversation at the lunch tables of the faculty. No one could have done more rapidly than you.
Dear President

I am writing to express my strong support for the proposal to establish a new faculty position in the department of X. I believe that this position will be crucial in advancing the research agenda of our institution and in enhancing our standing in the academic community.

The need for such a position has become increasingly apparent in recent years. Many of our leading researchers are currently engaged in projects that require specialized expertise that is not currently available in our department. By adding this faculty position, we can attract top talent and ensure that our research remains at the forefront of the field.

I understand that the decision to establish a new position is not an easy one and requires careful consideration. However, I believe that the benefits of such a move will far outweigh the costs. I would be happy to provide further details and answer any questions you may have.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. I look forward to hearing your thoughts on this proposal.

Sincerely,

I am looking forward with great pleasure to my work in Chicago next October. In all probability I shall have to return to Montreal for some weeks after the work here is over. They have not yet found a Dean at McGill, and I must help with the registration of students which takes place late in September. But I shall be in Chicago by October first. On my return to this country I learned with great pleasure that you had been elected permanently president of the University. Dear Dr. Burton, Recently I received a news from Mrs. Hishinuma in Japan that you have been elected President of the University of Chicago. She writes that the University sent me an information to that effect. I congratulate you on the honour as well as responsibility that the University authorities have been pleased to confer on you who deserve them most.

May the abundant blessings of God rest upon you in your new duties, and the University prosper in the advance of learning and civilization!

The disaster in Tokyo and the neighboring towns is indescribably awful. I do not know what became of my son who was attending to his duties in the government when this disaster took place, but I think he was safe from any harm. Otherwise, I may have heard from home by this time. I am glad to hear that American people have made a generous contribution toward the relief fund. By the providence of God, may this great disaster turn good for Japan.

I came to Germany last month from Cambridge, and am spending my time in visiting institutions and prosecuting further studies. To-morrow I am going to Tyrol, being invited by Professor Brandl of Berlin University who is staying there for the holidays.
I expect today for a fortnight at Innsbruck, then to travel in Switzerland, Italy and France, and sail from Marseille toward the end of October.

With kindest regards to Mrs. Burton and yourself.

Dear Dr. Burton:-

The last number of the Magazine brought the news of your election as President of the University, and I want to add my good wishes to the host of others you must have received. It is a great satisfaction to me that you have been chosen for this office. You address of last spring that was sent out to alumni strikes the right spot.

I find the University of Chicago is as well and favorably known here in the East as any of the American Universities, and this is largely because of the the large amount and high quality of research that is being done there. I gladly testify that the University has been almost if not quite the greatest influence in my life. I feel that it made me.

Please accept my warmest personal regards, and my hope that you may long be spared to guide the University into ever increasing greatness and usefulness.

My dear Mr. Satake:

I am writing this at the request of President Burton, and first of all, I want on his behalf to explain that your letter is one of many warm personal messages which he received soon after his election as President of the University of Chicago; and this particular type of intimate messages he has been holding in the hope that he would find an opportunity when he might answer them over his own signature. That opportunity has not yet arrived; and in despair of its arrival, the President has asked me, on his behalf, to answer some of them.

Dr. Burton gratefully appreciates your congratulations on his assumption of the presidency. Your congratulations are quite in harmony with those which have come to him from alumni, trustees, faculty, undergraduates and many friends. His administration is giving the highest encouragement and satisfaction to all friends of the University.

We are greatly interested and encouraged to read your personal comments touching upon the disposition of the Japanese people toward America. If the sentiments of the people of both countries can only find faithful expression in the policies of their respective governments, it would seem that there is nothing but hope in the future so far as the relationships between Japan and the United States are concerned.

Please accept from the President and from us our cordial regards and good wishes.

Assistant to the President.
In order to avoid any conflict of interest, let us consider the following points:

1. The project team should be composed of individuals from different sectors and backgrounds.
2. Regular meetings should be held to discuss progress and address any issues.
3. A clear communication plan should be established to ensure transparency.
4. All decisions should be made by consensus, with each member's input valued.
5. Regular feedback sessions should be conducted to assess the project's effectiveness.

By following these guidelines, we can ensure that the project is executed efficiently and effectively.
My dear Dr. Burton,

Before writing a line I must send you a thousand apologies for having failed to acknowledge receipt of your Commentary on Galatians and Greek Harmony though I was convinced until very lately that I had done it. I wish most heartily to congratulate you on your assumption of office as the President of the University which I always feel most proud, especially in the time we are facing the great task of reconstructing the world after the Great War. May God and Father graciously promote the cause for which the University and her sons and daughters stand in all parts of the earth!

It is with utmost gratitude and the inspiring sense of responsibility to remember that I and together with most Christian workers my family are among those who have been spared at the recent Great Earthquake and Conflagration which really destroyed something over 110,000 lives in and about the city of Tokyo. Japan is today confronting the great work of reconstruction along various lines in a particular sense. Christians are particularly under obligations for the work, and
Dear Mr. President,

I believe it is important to address the current situation where we have a significant number of outstanding issues. It appears that the current policy of non-interference is not yielding the desired results. I propose that we take a more proactive approach by engaging in active diplomacy and economic sanctions. This will help to deter further aggression and stabilize the region.

I have drafted a document outlining these proposals. I hope you will find them useful.

we are trying to accept the challenge. We believe God always works with earnest men and women engaged in honest work, and Christians are in particular co-workers of God who is in the utmost sense of the term the ever growing creating Personal Agent. I am happy to note about us that the undaunted spirit is overriding our people to do their utmost to perfect the reconstruction work. Their earnest unselfish effort, I hope, will be great enough to make good some serious blunders some few people did lately. It is very very unfortunate that many Korean brothers suffered at the hands of some of our Japanese, because of the unfounded rumor that the Koreans were responsible for many fires which followed the first shock of the earthquake but in the course of time, I am very glad to say, they knew their wrong and heartily repeated it and came to be really friendly and kind to our Korean brothers now. Another serious blunder is that Mr. Onogi, well-known anarchist of Japan, was lynched at the hands of some military men, but the general public is seriously against it. This unfortunate incident may prove a real benefit to Japan after all. The militarist party which was boasting of the great beneficial services rendered
We found the new scheme to work very well.
Our results were consistent with the model predictions. In fact, the observed data fit the model very closely. The theoretical calculations were also in agreement with the experimental results. We believe that this new approach will lead to significant improvements in our understanding of the system.

As for the other project, we have made some progress. We have developed a new algorithm that allows us to process large datasets more efficiently. However, we have encountered some technical difficulties that we are currently working on. We expect to have a working prototype within the next few weeks.

We have also received some feedback from colleagues regarding our recent publications. While their comments were generally positive, there were a few suggestions for improvements. We have taken these comments into consideration and are working on incorporating them into our future work.
by the army and the navy, trying to promote their cause which has lately become considerably unpopular among the people, but the Osugi case is too serious for them to succeed in their effort. Viscount Goto, home minister, it is intimated, is terribly indignant about it. I cannot but hope that the nations of the world will not be misled about it, for the Japanese as a whole will never be overpowered by militarists and mistaken nationalists and, moreover, will prove a peace and justice loving people.

I cannot close this letter without mentioning that our people are most heartily grateful to your people and government for their moral and material help and relief being rendered to our earthquake sufferers and victims. This must prove, I believe, an unprecedented chance for both peoples to extend warmest hands to each other to unite in the common cause of justice and good will between peoples of the world.

May God bless you and us all!

Dear President Burton:

When you were first elected President of the University of Chicago, I did not feel like congratulating you, although I felt that it was a very fine thing for the University. I felt however, that your teaching would be almost entirely cut out and I thought your writing also. For both of these reasons, I regretted to see the change. On more careful thought, I am convinced that it was the best thing to do as it will mean much for the University and in this way your influence will meet a larger number of people. I feel now that your plans and your policy may influence the University for generations to come. President Harper laid a wonderful foundation. I know of no one that could follow up his work as well as you. I was much interested in the bulletin you sent out.

I am ready now to offer you sincere and hearty congratulations and to wish for you good health for a number of years to come. It is a great thing for the University and I trust that it may be work of great interest and satisfaction to yourself.

With kindest regards, and wishing you a very Happy New Year.

Yours sincerely,

P.S. I am still raising money for Pikeville College, but my family is living at Oberlin, Ohio this year as my daughter is a Freshman in College here.
Dear President Farley,

I trust this letter finds you well. I have been considering the possibility of obtaining a grant from the Pricewater College for a ticket to attend your lecture on the 1st of October.

I am particularly interested in the topic you will be covering, as I believe it will be highly relevant to my current research. I have been working on a project that involves the intersection of technology and society, and I am convinced that your insights will be invaluable.

I understand that the grant application process is competitive, but I am confident that my proposal aligns well with the college's mission and values. I have included a detailed outline of my research and a copy of the proposal to support my case. I look forward to hearing your thoughts on my proposal.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

President E.D. Burton,
University of Chicago.

Dec. 5, 1924.

Dear President Burton:

Ever since you became President of the University I have wanted to write you to express my pleasure at the selection, and now your note to the Alumni with the request: "Please write me what you think of it", gives me my excuse.

I have read the story of the "New Epoch" at a sitting and with absorbing interest. One of the best things that ever came into my life was the University of Chicago. The years spent there were almost heavenly bliss. I was there at first under the presidency of Dr Harper, with whom I had work - in 1899. That summer I had a class also with you. I went back and forth, and finally completed my work in 1909.

When I went to Chicago I had no idea of taking a degree. All I wanted was the TRUTH. I worked in seven different departments. In the end, and incidentally, I did take the A.M. and Ph.D. degrees.

What I want especially to say is that in a large measure the University of Chicago meant to me YOU. I "majored" in your department, took many classes under you, and felt wonderfully inspired by your winsome personality. I remember especially a number of private talks I had with you.

Of course with your many and great responsibilities these things have passed out of your mind, and I am imposing on you to take so much of your valuable time in recalling them. But really I have a point to make: it is that to me the University of Chicago is not a cold proposition but an extremely human interest. It means such names as Harper, Foster, Mathews, Votaw, Goodspeed, the two Smiths, Case, Henderson, Small, Tufts, Judson, Soares, Willett, Hoben, etc., and yours.

I ardently hope that your ideals for the University will be realized.

Respectfully and cordially yours,

John C. Granbery
Dear President D. D. Burton,

Best President Burton:

Ever since you became President of the University I have wanted to write you to express my pleasure at the selection and your note to the Alumni with the request: "Please write me what you think of "give me my excuse.

I have been the only "New Men" at a meeting and with especial interest one of the best things that ever came into my life was the University of Chicago. The years spent there were some of the happiest in my life. I was here at first under the presidency of Dr. Harper with whom I had worked in 1906. And finally, completed my work in 1910.

When I went to Chicago I had no notion of getting a degree.

All I needed from the the TRUTH was to work in some different field. I just «take the M.A. and M.D. degrees.

What I want especially to see is that in a large measure the University of Chicago means to me, "mealed" in your government, your many classes under your leadership, and feel the opportunity to engage in your wise score of employment. I remember especially a number of paper which set off I read with your own comment.

Of course with your many and great responsibilities, those things have passed out of your mind, and I am impressed on you to think so much of your many people for in extraordinary work. It is not easy to measure just to the University of Chicago, but it is a great possession. It is not easy to measure just to the University of Chicago, but it is a great possession. It is not easy to measure just to the University of Chicago, but it is a great possession. It is not easy to measure just to the University of Chicago, but it is a great possession. I sincerely hope that your interests will be renewed.
