Dear Doctor Harper,

My son needs an instructor for a few days in his subjects Logic and Mechanics, before going to College. He has a condition in these branches, and I desire to obtain a good professor for a few days in each. Can you refer me to such a man?
I assume that, although your corps of instructors have not assembled yet, you will know of some one who can come to me today and following days.

In order to make the matter plain to the gentlemen (for there must be two I suppose) will you kindly enclose this note to anyone you think suitable, and my messenger will at once take it to them.

He understands what is needed, and will go anywhere you direct.

I had the pleasure of calling at your house, upon your friends there, in July, Mrs. Rockefeller, her daughters who were delighted with the Fair.

Very sincerely yours,

Nettie F. McCormick

My Dear Dr. Harper:—

Last evening I had a full conference with Dr. Zeno, upon the question proposed in your kind letter of the 11th, and found that he is desirous that I should comply with your suggestion. He gave me some idea of the work which has already been accomplished, and the plans which you have for the future, all of which are most interesting and important.

Upon a careful consideration of the whole matter, I regret to say that it seems necessary for me to decline the proposal that I should act as one of the Trustees of the incorporated association and I regret this the more as I should be glad to assist in the promotion of such an important work, if I saw the way clear to add this to the many other interests to which I am already giving some attention. The fact is, however, that I cannot, with satisfaction to myself, or advantage to the Institute, take on this new obligation, even though the work required would be slight. The responsibility which I should feel in the matter would compel me, according to my way of thinking, to give more time to it than I can really afford, in justice to the other interests I already have in hand, and more time, perhaps, than would be needed if the Trusteeship were performed in a perfunctory way. I am already a member of one or two Boards that only meet once or twice a year, and yet the feeling of responsibility and the necessity of attending to the interests involved, are such that I cannot dispose of them by a cursory examination of the matters at such long intervals. If I should be of any use to the Institute, it would be because of something that I could do, and as to lending my name to an institution with which I come in very little touch, that is not the relation in which I care to stand to any institution whose work is worth proper attention. There are many interests upon lines somewhat similar to this, to which I am already pledged, and until I can properly see my way clear to lessen the work upon those lines, I do not feel it right to undertake more positions of trust and responsibility.

It may be of some assistance to you for me to endeavor to interest in this matter, some of my Princeton friends, who I learn have not yet entered into this work, believing as I do that it should be as representative as possible, and embrace the various views held upon the subjects of Criticism and Exegesis, it would seem to me a desirable thing, from your standpoint. that a fair proportion of scholars should be drawn into the work, who are not exactly of your way of thinking. To accomplish this, I should be glad to help you in any way that I can, and I will write to Prof. Davis, of Princeton, to see if he will not join in this movement, understanding from Dr. Zeno that you have already invited him.

Yours very truly,
My Dear Mr. Harker,

I am writing to express my deep concern over the matter of the American Institute of Chemistry, which is of great importance to me. I believe that this institution is vital to the future of science and industry, and I am worried about its current state.

I was told that you are in charge of the matter, and I am writing to discuss this with you. I believe that it is important to maintain the integrity and reputation of this institution.

I am also concerned about the financial stability of the Institute. I have heard that there are rumors of financial troubles, and I am worried that this could affect its future.

I am writing to you personally because I believe that it is important to address this matter directly. I would appreciate it if you could provide me with some information about the current state of affairs.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Yours sincerely,

We have just received word from Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller that they will be with us either on Tuesday or Friday of the week of the Convocation. Will it be agreeable to you for them to reach the 6th Ave. Station at 9 30 P.M.?

Dear Dr. Harper:---

It gives me pleasure to inform you that the arrangements have now all been completed for the banquet of the Association on Saturday evening, May 14th, at the Grand Pacific Hotel, at 6:00 o'clock. In arranging the various sentiments to be proposed by the speakers, the Committee requests that you use as your sentiment "The Association as an Educator". By this we do not mean to compare the Association to the great Universities, or their work, but the thought which you could profitably dwell upon is that the Association is an educational factor in the city life of those young men, who through lack of means, or for other reasons, are prevented from attending the colleges or universities, or even the business colleges of the cities. In its evening and day classes, in its lectures to young men, in the reading room, the literary societies and the library, the Association offers these elementary opportunities which are eagerly accepted by the large clerk class of young men. These combined influences are a force of great power, and the results which are recorded from week to week are a clear evidence of the great value of these opportunities to this floating class of young men, and a proof that they are fully used.

President Andrews of Brown University, in a recent article in "MEN" - the official publication of the Young Men's Christian Association - has made some interesting and emphatic statements, which I should be glad to have you read, and which I have asked Mr. Messer to forward to you, as I do not happen to have a copy at hand.

I enclose you herewith a prospectus of the Educational Department for 1897, and a small leaflet giving the numbers in the classes, and a classification of the students by nationalities, occupations and ages. All of this material will help you in arranging your thoughts, and lest you should find yourself more pressed than you expect, let me add, that if you have not time to prepare any remarks, we shall be glad to have you say extemporaneously whatever thoughts occur to you upon this interesting theme.

Dear Dr. Hampton:

I am pleased to inform you that the arrangements have been completed for the banquet of the Association on Saturday, April 28th. The banquet will be held at the Grand Pacific Hotel, at 6:00 o'clock. In addition to the catered luncheon, there will be a dance following the banquet. The cost will be $5.00 per person, which includes tuition and entertainment. I understand that you have arranged for the Association to meet at the banquet, and I hope that all members will be able to attend.

In conclusion, I would like to express my appreciation for the opportunity to speak on the subject of "The Importance of University Education" at the banquet. I hope that the audience will find the talk informative and enjoyable.

Dear Dr. Harper:

I am very desirous of finding a young man whose qualifications would fit him to act in the capacity of a director for an Outing Club of boys from twelve to fourteen years of age. The hours would be from three to five in the afternoons and Saturdays from nine to five. He must be willing to be a boy among boys, while directing their play, doing all he can to develop their character along manly lines.

Knowing fully how busy you are, I beg you not to answer this note personally. My only thought in writing to you is with the hope that you will pass it on through your secretary to some one who would take an interest in helping me to find the proper kind of person.

Trusting that you will pardon me for encroaching even to this small extent upon your time, and thanking you in advance for your kindness,

Dear Dr. Harper:

I am very grateful for finding a young man whose disposition and energy I am sure will serve in the capacity of a director for an outside group of young from Europe. He has fourteen years of service, and enthusiastic praise from many. He is willing to serve you free of charge to live in the attention of any society from nine to five. He is willing to be your secretary for free of charge, and I am sure he would be willing to play your game and car to the best of your ability. His character is known by many fine people, and he has developed good character. I am sure you will find him a type you will approve. I beg you not to answer this note personally. My only request is writing to you to write me back that you will please let your secretary know who would send the information to me. I am interested in finding out who the proper kind of person you will send me, and I am sure this young man would accept your kindness. Believe me,

My dear Mrs. McCormick:

In reply to your request for a Director for an Outing Club of boys, I have had the secretary of the Board of Recommendations make a very careful search for a young man with the qualifications necessary for such a position.

He suggests the name of Rowland T. Rogers, of the class of 1901, who is at present a student in the law school. I heartily endorse his suggestion.

Mr. Rogers is a young man eminently fitted in every way to take care of the boys; a young man of excellent appearance, pleasant manners, clean and upright in character, one whom the parents would be pleased to welcome into their homes.

I have requested Mr. Rogers to call and see you in regard to the position.

I trust he will prove satisfactory.

In reply to your letter of December 28th, I have had a

I congratulate you and the University upon securing M. Dear Sir:

Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick wishes me to thank you for your kind assistance in procuring the football tickets for the Thanksgiving game.

About the fourteenth I called at Spalding and Company's place of business and spoke to a young man there who has been selling the tickets for the football games this fall, and was told by him that no tickets could be purchased for the Chicago-Michigan game until the morning of the twentieth. This young man told me at the same time that he did not know of any place where we could write and reserve tickets by mail.

On the supposition that this was the regular agency of the University for the sale of tickets, I was on hand promptly on the morning of the twentieth and succeeded in getting very near the front of the line, but when I got up to the ticket seller, all of the two and three dollar seats seemed to have been disposed of. It did not seem to me that there could have been more than thirty men ahead of me. I came out immediately and found that the brokers about town all had plenty of seats for which they were asking from seven to ten dollars, and, upon

Dear Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick,

Dear Sir:

Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick writes me to thank you for your kind assistance in procuring the subscription ticket for the Thanksgiving dinner.

About the subscription I called at Springfield and

Company's place of business and spoke to a young man who said he was in charge of the tickets for the Thanksgiving dinner came into the field and saw copies of the tickets under which would be printed for the Chicago-Milwaukee Line and would be purchased for the Chicago-Milwaukee Line until the morning of the Thanksgiving. The young man told me of the same time that he did not know of any plane where we would write and reserve tickets of mail.

On the suggestion that this was the regular season of the University for the sale of tickets, I went on hand promptly on the morning of the Thanksgiving and succeeded in getting very near the front of the line, but when I got up to the ticket seller, all of the two and threesense seats seemed to have been disposed of. It did not seem to me that there could have been more than fifty seats within a mile. I came out immediately and found that the previous agent for Fall and Winter had failed to obtain and now were reported from various of the Fall colleges.

learning this, I sent the young man who is in the office with me back to Spalding's but, as he was obliged to take his place near the foot of a long line, he was not able to get any seats at all when it came his turn, except those near the end.

Having heard a great many complaints from different people about town, Mr. McCormick thought you would be interested in knowing that there has apparently been an unusual manipulation of tickets by some one this year. I have to-day learned of a man who has done some brokerage in tickets for this game who claims to have secured his tickets from students at the University. Perhaps in a game like the one to be played on Thanksgiving Day, it is difficult to control the sale of tickets and prevent the public from being somewhat imposed upon by the ticket brokers, but if there were any way this could be done, I am sure it would be appreciated by a large number of people who find it more and more difficult each year to get tickets to the big games through the regular channels. I have since understood that Spalding's was not the best place to make reservations, and, if this is so, it would seem only fair for the young man who was selling the seats to tell inquirers where they could reserve seats by mail. If this is a matter for consideration Learning this, I went to the young man who is in the office with my back to Baltimore, just as if we were applied to take my place near the door of the train, we were not able to get any seats at all, when I came into town, except those near the end.

Having heard a great many complaints from different people about town, I approached and asked them if they would be interested in knowing that there are some one who have seen so many manifestion of tickets of some one who have gone this year, I have gone looking for a man who is here, and have some places to tickets for the next few days, to have someone pick them up, from at least the University, perhaps in a place like the one to go playing on Thursday, saving $1.50 difficult to continue the sale of tickets, and prevent the trouble from paying something toward a man the ticket, but if there were any who could be gone, I am sure it would be appreciated of a large number of people who think it more and more difficult to earn money to get tickets to the big games. I am rather small, I have since discovered that specification, and if this was not the place to make reservations, and if this was not the place only for the young men who were selling the seats to sell independently, and that could reserve seats or seats. If that is a matter for cooperation.
and we can be of any assistance, I should be glad to endeavor to collect any further information that might be interesting.

Since talking with you this morning I have been talking over the plans for Friday noon, the 23rd instant, and am wondering whether it was your original plan to include Count Luetsow in that group. It was my original plan to have the Ambassador at luncheon at my house, and to invite Count Luetsow to meet him and some others. If you should include Count Luetsow I would simply drop my own luncheon plan altogether, and would then be very glad to be one of the party.

May I mention among our faculty the names of some gentlemen whom you might wish to include: Professor John M. Manly, Head of our Department of English, has had considerable to do with the Ambassador in the line of their common literary activities, and
M. Jusserand expressed a desire to meet him while in Chicago.

Dear Mr. Henderson,

Since falling into your hands and having the honor and privilege of meeting you, I have been viewing your plans for the future, and I am convinced that your original plan of returning courts in your home, and to make court sessions to improve your home and its surroundings. I have today included court sessions to meet with you and some of the gentlemen who I mentioned some time ago. I will be in touch with you to discuss the progress of the project.

Dear Mr. Mason,

Since talking with you after your return from the 37A Incident, my mind has been so occupied with the news that I have been unable to write anything down. I am now in the position of having to take the case of the man who was in the医院 during the incident and to write a report on it. I have heard from several sources that the man was found dead in his cell, and I am now preparing a report on the circumstances. If you have any more information, please let me know. I would like to see this matter resolved as soon as possible.

Yours sincerely,

My dear Mr. McCormick:

I beg to acknowledge your cordial letter of October 30th in reference to our pamphlet "Chicago, the City—Chicago, the University" and desire to express my appreciation of your friendly reference both to it and to the University.

There came to my attention six or eight months ago a statement that you were planning a memorial for the late Mrs. McCormick and this fact has taken a strong hold upon my interest and imagination. I have given the matter serious and prolonged consideration and have come to feel that a memorial to her in this city, where she spent her life and where her influence was so widely felt, would be most appropriate.

You are I presume familiar with the existence of our Graduate School of Social Service Administration in which we are studying the problems of social welfare and educating men and women for service in this field. It has been maintained for several years on the basis of annual subscriptions, but ought now at once to be put upon a basis of permanent stability by an adequate endowment which will assure the permanent continuance of its useful service. Considering Mrs. McCormick's beautiful life and her broad and real interest in people and their social welfare I have been able to think of no memorial so appropriate as would be a Harriet Hammond McCormick Graduate School of Social Service Administration of the University of Chicago. Even with its limited resources our school has accomplished remarkable results. Properly endowed and bearing an honorable name its field of accomplishment would be greatly increased and of great significance to Chicago and the west.

Will you not let us present this matter to you fully in the near future. I believe we can convince you that it has great possibilities of service and peculiar appropriateness as a memorial to the very beautiful and useful life of Mrs. McCormick.

Very sincerely yours,

Mr. Cyrus H. McCormick

The great H. M. Macomber,

I write to communicate your copyright letter of October 30th in reference to our paper, "Artifice," the October issue, as an explanation of my expression of opinion on the United States Patent Office's decision on your attorney's reference letter to it and to the Uniform Patent Office.

Why come to my attention, six or eight months ago?

There comes a time when one finds himself in need of a patent attorney. I have been fortunate in not having had to go to the Patent Office for advice or consultation; and have come to look upon a patent attorney as being an ally in the fight for the protection of my rights.

You write to me of the experience of your graduate student in being a "patent attorney." It has been my experience that the practice of law involves much more, and may mean far more to one's life. It has been my experience that the practice of law means a life of constant struggle, a life of constant conflict.

As an example, I would like to mention the case of the "uniform patent office." The Uniform Patent Office has been in existence for many years, and has been a source of great benefit to me.

I would like to thank you for the service you have rendered to me, and for the interest you have shown in my case. I am grateful for your assistance, and appreciate the opportunity to work with you.

Yours sincerely,

Dear President Burton:

Your letter of 11 November touches me very deeply. The fact that you have given serious thought to the field which a memorial to my dear wife might cover and the lines of useful and helpful activity which it might follow in sending out a message of good will, causes me to feel a gratitude and appreciation which is difficult for me to express.

We will give your suggestion most earnest consideration, but until we feel that there is some chance of our going further with the matter, I hope that you will not give time or effort to any investigation or special details for our use. I will write you again as soon as I am able to do so.

Very sincerely yours,

Cyrus H. McCormick

Dear President Burton:

I thank you so much for your courtesy with regard to the football tickets. My own attendance at the game is dependent upon the result of some engagements which I am now trying to arrange. My son, however, for whom I especially desired them, is going and joins me in sincere appreciation for this kindness on your part.

Very cordially yours,
