

January 28th, 1901.

Mr. Melville E. Stone,

President of the Associated Press, N. Y. City.

My dear Mr. Stone:-

I think you will never accuse me of having asked business favors. I wish in this letter not to ask a favor but to do one. I wish to call the attention of your office to the Convention which is to be held in Philadelphia March 2nd, 3rd and 4th. It is the Convention of the Religious Education Association, and I pledge you in advance that it will be one of the most important conventions ever held in the United States. The speakers are men of the greatest ability and the whole affair promises to be one of great moment. I may say to you confidentially that the President of the United States is expected to be present and make one of the addresses, but we do not wish to announce it yet. Will you not see to it that this meeting is properly cared for?

Yours very truly,

W. R. Harper

January 23rd, 1864.

Mr. Melville B. Stone,
President of the Associated Press, N. Y. City.

My dear Mr. Stone:-

I think you will never accuse me of having asked business favors. I wish in this letter not to ask a favor but to do one. I wish to call the attention of your office to the Convention which is to be held in Philadelphia March 2nd, 3rd and 4th. It is the Convention of the Religious Education Association, and I pledge you in advance that it will be one of the most important conventions ever held in the United States. The speakers are men of the greatest ability and the whole affair promises to be one of the great moments. I may say to you confidentially that the President of the United States is expected to be present and make one of the addresses, but we do not wish to announce it yet. Will you not see to it that this meeting is properly covered for?

Yours very truly,

W. R. Harper