

November 12th, 1903.

Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip,

Madison Avenue, New York City.

My dear Mr. Vanderlip :-

I am writing to ask you to hold yourself free from any other engagement for Saturday, December fifth luncheon. The alumni and alumnae of the University of Chicago living in the east are to hold their annual meeting in New York City on that date, and we are very anxious to have you and Mrs. Vanderlip present, also your sister and her husband, if you will be good enough to ask her to hold the date free. The formal invitations will come a little later.

Trusting that you are all well, I remain

Yours very truly,

November 13th, 1903.

Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip,

Madison Avenue, New York City.

My dear Mr. Vanderlip :-

I am writing to ask you to hold yourself free from any other engagement for Saturday, December fifth
The alumni and alumnae of the University of Chicago living in the east are to hold their annual meeting in New York City on that date, and we are very anxious to have you and Mrs. Vanderlip present, also your sister and her husband, if you will be good enough to ask her to hold the date free. The formal invitations will come a little later.

Trusting that you are all well, I remain

Yours very truly,

*The National City Bank
of New York.*

CAPITAL FULLY PAID, $ 25,000,000.
SHAREHOLDERS' LIABILITY, $ 25,000,000.
SURPLUS & UNDIVIDED PROFITS, $ 16,000,000.
CABLE ADDRESS "CITIBANK"

New York, May 11th, 1903.

Dr. William R. Harper,
The University of Chicago,
Chicago, Illinois. ✓

My dear Dr. Harper:-

Please accept my cordial thanks for your note of May 8th.
It is worth while being scolded, if one may have pleasant things mixed in.

With cordial regards, I am,

Very truly yours,

Wanderlip

Ek
H.

The National City Bank
of Chicago

May 11th, 1908.

Dr. William R. Harper,
The University of Chicago,
Chicago, Illinois.

My dear Dr. Harper:-

Please accept my cordial thanks for your note of May 8th.
It is worth while being recalled, if one may have pleasant things

mixed in.

With cordial regards, I am,

Very truly yours,

W. R. Harper

May 8th, 1903.

Mr. F. A. Vanderlip,

667 Madison Ave., New York City.

My dear Mr. Vanderlip:-

I don't know whether I ought to write you a letter of congratulation or one of scolding. Perhaps you will permit me to make it both. I must, of course, congratulate you, because you have done exactly the right thing and secured for your partner one of the best girls we have had at the University; but I must scold you for doing it so suddenly as to take her breath away, and at the same time to deprive her of the privilege of a degree from the University. However, we will try to even up things sometime, and meanwhile I am sure you will permit me to wish you all the best things imaginable for the future.

Looking forward to the pleasure of seeing you in Chicago soon,

I remain

Yours very truly,

May 21st, 1903.

Mr. F. A. Vanderbilt,

637 Madison Ave., New York City.

My dear Mr. Vanderbilt:-

I don't know whether I ought to write you a letter of congratulation or one of condoling. Perhaps you will permit me to make it both. I must, of course, congratulate you, because you have done exactly the right thing and secured for your partner one of the best girls we have had at the University; but I must scold you for doing it so suddenly as to take our breath away, and at the same time to deprive her of the privilege of choosing from the University. However, we will try to even up things sometime, and meanwhile I am sure you will permit me to wish you all the best things imaginable for the future.

Looking forward to the pleasure of seeing you in Chicago soon,

I remain

Yours very truly,