Title University of Chicago. Faculty Wives' Dinners. Records

Date 1936-1985(inclusive)

Size 5 linear ft. (10 boxes)

Repository 1100 East 57th Street
Chicago, Illinois 60637

Abstract The records of the Faculty Wives' Dinners comprise 5 linear feet of material, spanning the years 1936 to 1985. The records pertain to the organization of dinners for the wives of University of Chicago faculty and trustees, given annually from 1936 through 1980. The collection contains manuscripts of speeches, song lyrics, and play scripts; correspondence among event organizers and with University administrators; invitations and programs; and reports, committee records, and financial material. Also included in the collection is a small amount of material not pertaining to the Faculty Wives' Dinners. This material consists of manuscripts and grant applications for the 1980 Quadrangle Club Revels, faculty and alumni periodicals, and programs from amateur theater productions.

Historical Note

From 1936 to 1980, volunteer committees organized social dinners in the Quadrangle Club for the wives of University of Chicago faculty and trustees. The events were planned as a counterpart to the annual dinner given by University Trustees for faculty members.

The Faculty Wives' events included entertainment productions as well as social dinners. Early productions were often unrehearsed theatrical readings, skits, song recitals, and games. Beginning in 1950, the productions took the form of more elaborate theatrical events, with the presentation of original material whose subject matter satirized current events and campus life. These productions became a campus tradition. Dress rehearsals were attended by the participants' husbands and children, members of the campus community, media reporters, and photographers. The content of these productions was socially attuned and could be sharply witty, as in the 1970 satire of the women's movement, "Never Underestimate..." which met with objections from many female students and faculty members.

Considerable time and effort were devoted to the event at every stage, including fund-raising and underwriting, designing and producing invitations and programs, planning meals for hundreds of guests, and composing, producing, and performing the theatrical programs. Committees assigned to each task reported to the General Chairman and the Treasurer for the event. These in turn reported to the Chair of the Board of Trustees

Beginning in the 1970s, social and generational changes resulted in diminishing interest and support for the tradition, which was ended in 1980 under the administration of President Hannah Gray. The last Faculty Wives' Dinner took place in 1980, and a reunion was held in 1985.

Scope Note

The records of the Faculty Wives' Dinners comprise 5 linear feet of material, spanning the years 1936 to 1985. The records pertain to the organization of dinners for the wives of University of Chicago faculty and trustees, given annually from 1936 through 1980. The collection contains manuscripts of speeches, song lyrics, and play scripts; correspondence among event organizers and with University administrators; invitations and programs; and reports, committee records, and financial material.

The collection has been arranged into six series. Series I, Events Files, is arranged chronologically and contains material related to the organization of Dinners and theater productions from 1937 to 1979. Series II, Officers' Reports, spans the years 1936 to 1979 and contains reports submitted by committee chairs to the General Chairman and University administrators. Series III, Invitations, Programs, and Talent Search Cards, spans the years 1942 to 1979. Series IV, Committee Records, contains material used within various organizing committees from 1959 to 1980. Series V, Scripts, Songs, and Production Materials, contains material used during the organization and performance of the amateur theater performances which followed dinners from 1950 to 1980. Series VI, Related Campus and Theater Organizations, contains material not pertaining to Faculty Wives' Dinners; this series, spanning the years 1951 to 1980, includes programs and other material related to a variety of amateur theater groups, as well as a small number of faculty and alumni periodicals.

Series II: Officers' Reports

This series contains reports completed by the General Chairman, Treasurer, chairs of subcommittees, and other officers involved in the organization of the Faculty Wives' Dinners from the years 1936 to 1978. Committees were assigned to duties such as entertainment, invitations, dinner, decorations, seating, programs, press publicity, and dance. The reports provide details of the officer's or committee's preparations for that year's dinner. After the event itself, reports were submitted to the General Chairman of the Faculty Wives Committee, the Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and the Vice Chancellor of the University. The reports were also used as reference by subsequent committees and officers. This series is arranged chronologically.

Series III: Invitations, Programs, and Talent Search Cards

This series consists of printed invitations, programs, and talent search cards produced for Faculty Wives' Dinners, 1942 to 1979. Invitations and programs were sometimes designed and produced by members of the Invitations Committee, but were more often professionally designed and printed. Participants indicated their volunteer interests on "Talent Search Cards," which were collected at dinners and used to assemble committees for the upcoming year. Handwritten notes and correspondence are found among some of the materials. This series is arranged chronologically. Samples of invitations and programs are also found in Series II: Committee Reports and Series IV: Committee Records.

Series IV: Committee Records

Series IV, Committee Records, covers the period 1959 to 1980 and is arranged alphabetically by committee name, then chronologically. This series contains the records of subcommittees involved in organizing the Faculty Wives' Dinners for each year. Included are the records of the Dance, Invitations, Production, Programs, and Publicity Committees. Materials include budgets, correspondence, manuscripts, press releases, notes, newspaper clippings, copies of officers' reports, and paste-ups and samples of invitations and programs. While the materials in Series I, Officer's Reports were turned into committee chairs and university administrators, the materials in this series were used as records and reference within individual committees. Material related to the Invitations Committee is also found in Series III, Invitations and programs. Material related to the Production Committee is also found in Series V, Scripts, Songs, and Related Materials.

Series V: Scripts, Songs, and Production Materials

Series V, Scripts, Songs, and Production Materials, covers the period 1950 to 1985. This series is arranged chronologically. Series V contains draft and final versions of play scripts, song lyrics, and sheet music composed for the theatrical productions of Faculty Wives' Dinners. Related material in this series includes notes, correspondence, schedules, and lists of cast and crew members. The content of this material, composed and produced by members of the Entertainment Committee, often satirizes current events and campus life at University of Chicago. Further material related to theatrical productions, including manuscripts of plays and songs, are also found in Series I, II, and IV.

Series VI: Related Campus and Theater Organizations

This series contains materials associated with a variety of campus groups which, like the Faculty Wives Club, produced special events at the university. This series consists of event programs, correspondence, schedules, and other material related to the production of events and covers the period 1951 to 1980. The end of this series also contains a small number of University of Chicago faculty and alumni periodicals, as well as material related to amateur theater and charity groups unaffiliated with the University of Chicago.
