Biographical Note

Lloyd Ashton Fallers, Jr., generally called Tom, was born in Nebraska City, Nebraska, on August 29, 1925, the son of Lloyd A. Fallers and Fannie Lincoln. He graduated from East High School, Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1943. After spending a year at the University of Utah (1943-1944) and a year at Deep Springs College (1944-1945) Fallers came to the University of Chicago in the fall of 1945 and completed his Ph.B. degree in 1946.

Arriving at the University of Chicago, Fallers had intended to study medicine but found that his interests gravitated towards the study of society. Pursuing these growing interests he began to study anthropology. Fallers conducted anthropological field work under the direction of Sol Tax for four months in Iowa during 1948, and this research formed the basis of his master's thesis on "The Role of Factionalism in Fox Acculturation." He was awarded an A.M. degree in anthropology in 1949.

In 1949 Fallers married Margaret Chave who was also a graduate student teaching in the College. In autumn 1949 Fallers attended the London School of Economics on a Fulbright Scholarship to study with Audrey Richards, Raymond Firth, Daryll Forde, and Edmund Leach. Richards had recruited Fallers for study in Africa on a visit to the University of Chicago. On Richards' recommendation as director of the East African Institute of Social Research, Fallers was awarded a Colonial Social Science Research Council fellowship to help her establish the Institute in Kampala, British Protectorate of Uganda. In 1950 Fallers left for East Africa and, as a fellow of the East African Institute, conducted a study of the Busoga. He returned to the University of Chicago in 1952. During the course of the following year, Fallers, acting as an instructor in the Department of Anthropology, worked on his dissertation with Robert Redfield, Fred Eggan, and Lloyd Warner. Fallers was awarded a Ph.D. degree in 1953.

In his dissertation, entitled "Bantu Bureaucracy: A Study of Role Conflict and Institutional Change in the Soga Political System," Fallers investigated the role of the headman in village life and the ways in which change in the wider colonial political system had influenced this role. In doing so, he addressed how the indigenous Busoga political institutions and the British administrative structure had come to form a single institutional complex.

Later Fallers expanded his thesis, and published it in revised form under the title Bantu Bureaucracy: A Study of Integration and Conflict in the Political System of an East African People (1956). The material which Fallers collected, somewhat incidentally while he was doing research, about Busoga law and courts was presented much later in his Law without Precedent: Legal Ideas in Action in Courts of Colonial Busoga (1969).

In 1953 Fallers went to Princeton for one year as a lecturer in anthropology. The following year he returned to Uganda. As Uganda was preparing for self rule, Fallers acted as the Senior Research Officer at the East African Institute before being appointed Richards' successor as Director of the Institute at the beginning of 1956. There Fallers worked with, among others, J. La Fontaine, Priscilla Reining, Aidan Southall, Martin Southwold, Derrick Stenning, and J. W. Tyler. It was during this period that Fallers conducted research into the leadership and political institutions of Buganda (1954-1957). Fallers' work formed the core of his edited volume entitled The King's Men: Leadership and Status in Buganda on the Eve of Independence (1964), which was part of a larger project on the study of leadership financed by the Carnegie Corporation.

Fallers, returning to the United States in 1957, was appointed Assistant Professor and subsequently Associate Professor at the University of California, Berkeley. He spent 1958-1959 at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences in Palo Alto in the company of Clifford Geertz, Fred Eggan, David Apter, Meyer Fortes, Raymond Firth, and Morris Janowitz. In 1960 Fallers returned to the University of Chicago as an Associate Professor of Anthropology. Fallers was appointed Professor at the beginning of 1964 and for the year 1967-1968 was the first recipient of the Henry Schultz Rotating Research Professorship in the Social Sciences. In 1970 Fallers was given a joint appointment to the departments of anthropology and sociology, and in 1972 he was named the A. A. Michelson Distinguished Service Professor.

On his arrival at the University in 1960 Fallers played a central role in founding the Committee for the Comparative Study of New Nations, which was established to encourage the comparative analysis of the social, political, administrative, cultural, and economic changes associated with the development of new states in Africa and Asia. On July 1, 1970, Fallers succeeded Clifford Geertz as the chairman of the committee. Fallers was also active in the Committee on African Studies and in the Center for Middle Eastern Studies. The various interests Fallers developed while participating in the academic life of the University were used, by him, to thematically draw together a collection of previously published essays in Inequality: Social Stratification Reconsidered (1973). These interests also formed the basis of his edited volume Immigrants and Associations (1967).

Throughout his career Fallers was actively engaged in a large number of projects which extended beyond the immediate University community. In 1958 Fallers participated in the Ford Foundation's Review of African Studies Programs in the United States. Then in 1961 Fallers was appointed Associate Editor for Anthropology for the International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences, a project in which he was actively engaged throughout the decade. During 1962-1963 Fallers, Kwamena Bentsi-Enchill, Denis Cowen, and Allison Dunham formed the commission on land tenure for the government of Basutoland which was funded by the Ford Foundation. This was a team of University of Chicago professors who were invited to make recommendations to the government regarding land tenure and land law. In recognition of his wide scholarly contributions Fallers was elected to the American Academy of the Arts and Sciences in 1972.

While developing his interests in the problems of modernization Fallers began, in the early 1960s, to conduct preparatory research on Turkey and in 1964 conducted field research in Konya, Turkey. In 1968 Fallers, accompanied by his wife, went to Edremit, Turkey, for one year to analyze the function of a small community in the operation of the larger national society. He returned to Edremit in 1971, but this stint of research was cut short when he had to return to Chicago after fracturing his elbow. Earlier Fallers had been successfully treated for a brain tumor. Now medical examinations revealed his cancer had reappeared. Fallers' condition deteriorated, and he died on July 4, 1974.

Fallers' last book, The Social Anthropology of the Modern Nation-State (1974), was based on the Lewis Henry Morgan Lectures which he gave at the University of Rochester in April 1971. In these lectures he compared the situations of East Africa and Turkey, crystallizing much of what he had learned about modernization and social change. This book was published posthumously.

Scope Note

The Fallers, Lloyd A. Papers cover the years 1937 to 1977 and are arranged into eleven series. They include: Series I, Biographical Materials, Series II, Correspondence, Series III, Course Materials, Series IV, Manuscripts by Fallers, Series V, Manuscripts by Others, Series VI, Africa Research Materials, Series VII, Turkey Research Materials, Series VIII, International Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences, Series IX, Margaret Chave Fallers Papers, Series X, Microfilms and Series XI, Letters of Reference.

The collection includes personal and professional correspondence, field notes and research materials, course materials, and manuscripts concerning other professional associations and projects in which he was engaged. Some of the correspondence includes Peter Benedict, Clifford Geertz, Marion Levy, Morris Janowitz, Michael Meeker, Audrey Richards and Aidan Southall as well as administrative correspondence concerning the Department of Anthropology, the Committee for the Comparative Study of New Nations, and the Committee for African Studies with which Fallers was involved.

The collection also contains materials generated by Fallers while pursuing research into colonialism and independence in East Africa, modernization in Turkey, and more general topics of social stratification and status. A substantial amount of information on Fallers' research for the East Africa Institute of Social Research can be found in Series VI. The collection includes editorial correspondence and manuscripts from when Fallers served as Associate Editor for Anthropology for the Institute Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences. It also contains field materials collected by Margaret Chave Fallers.

Series VI: Africa Research Materials

Series VI, Africa Research Materials (Boxes 27-44), is divided into seven subseries. The General subseries is composed of correspondence and manuscripts generated by Fallers' participation in the Ford Foundation's Review of African Studies Programs in the United States, the Peace Corps' African Lawyers' Program, and the Washington Center of Foreign Policy Research's Task Force on Africa. Subseries 2, Basutoland, contains material concerning Fallers' participation in the Ford Foundation's Commission on Land Tenure for the government of Basutoland (Lesotho) in 1962-1963.

The main body of this series is composed of material that Fallers collected during his years at the East African Institute of Social Research. Four subseries concern the Buganda. The first folder in Subseries 3, Buganda--General Files, containing correspondence with Mrs. Fallers, will help to orient the researcher to Fallers' Buganda material, especially in relationship to Subseries 5, Buganda--Note Cards and Subseries 6, Buganda--Maps. Subseries 3, Buganda--General Files, contains a number of noteworthy manuscripts by African authors. Subseries 4, Buganda--Leadership Study Files, contains research material (1954-1957) and is composed of field notes, genealogical material, and surveys. Finally, Subseries 7, Busoga, contains Fallers' dissertation proposal, field work report, field notes (1950-1952), and his extensive notes on government administrative documents and records of African Local Government courts in Busoga District.

Series VII: Turkey Research Materials

Series VII, (Boxes 44 to 46), contains Fallers research materials gathered during three periods of field research in Turkey. He completed field work in Konya during 1964 and then conducted research at Edremit in 1968-1969. This series contains Fallers' correspondence from the field in 1964, manuscripts based on his research, and manuscripts written by other social scientists. The only field research material in this series is an undated notebook containing three pages of notes.

Series IX: Margaret Chave Fallers Papers

Series IX, Margaret Chave Fallers Papers, Boxes 50 to 53, contains field notes by Mrs. Fallers (then Margaret Elinor Chave) taken during the summer of 1947 on Majuro, an atoll in the southern Marshall Islands, and a subseries containing general material associated with this project. Her study was carried out under the combined auspices of the University of Hawaii and the Pacific Science Board's Coordinated Investigation of Micronesian Anthropology. This research formed the basis for her A.M. thesis, "The Changing Position of the Mixed-Bloods in the Marshall Islands" which was submitted to the Department of Anthropology, University of Chicago in 1948. The Miscellaneous subseries is composed of manuscripts based both on Mrs. Fallers' research in Africa and on her experience as principal of the high school at the Laboratory Schools (1968-1971).
