Biographical Note

Harold Emerson Haydon was born, in Fort William, Ontario, Canada in 1909 to Dr. Albert Eustace Haydon and Edith Elizabeth Jones. His younger brothers were Edward Morgan (1912-1985) and Brownlee Walker (1914-1982), both graduates of the University of Chicago. The family moved to Hyde Park in 1917, where A. Eustace Haydon completed a PhD at the University in 1918 and joined the faculty as Professor of Comparative Religion.

Haydon graduated from the University of Chicago Laboratory Schools in 1926 and went on to the University of Chicago, graduating with a Ph.B. in 1930 and receiving an A.M in Philosophy in 1931. From 1932 to 1933, he studied at the Art Institute of Chicago, as a special student. He went on to his first professional job as an artist in residence at Pickering College, a secondary school in Ontario, Canada during the 1933-1934 academic year. The next year he started as an art instructor at George Williams College in Chicago, where he taught from 1934 to 1944. In 1940, he joined the Board of Directors of the Hyde Park Art Center.

Haydon began teaching at the University of Chicago in 1944, teaching humanities. He joined the faculty full time the next year, winning the Llewellyn John and Harriet Manchester Quantrell Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching, and was named Assistant Professor in Art. He was promoted to the rank of Associate Professor in 1948 and was named a full Professor in 1970. During the 1957-1958 academic year, he served as Dean of Students in the College, and from 1963 until his retirement in 1975, he was Director of Midway Studios, the fine arts studios of the Art Department. In addition to this, Haydon was a working multi-media artist, creating murals, paintings, tapestries, mosaic tile-work and stained glass. In 1972, he designed a stained glass window at the University's Rockefeller Chapel. Along with this, he published books and articles on art, writing criticism for the Chicago Sun Times, and was also active in the Chicago art scene promoting the work of local artists. Haydon was awarded a lifetime membership in the Artists Guild of Chicago in 1975. He died in 1994 at the age of 84.
