Biographical Note

At the age of thirty, Robert Maynard Hutchins was inaugurated as the fifth President of the University of Chicago. From 1929 until his retirement from the University in 1951, Hutchins remained the chief executive officer of the University.

Robert Maynard Hutchins was born on January 17, 1899 in Brooklyn, New York, to Anna Laura Murch and William James Hutchins, a Presbyterian minister, professor of theology, and eventual President of Berea College (Kentucky). Hutchins enrolled at Oberlin (where his father taught) in 1915 but discontinued his undergraduate studies in 1917 to serve with the Ambulance Corps of the U. S. Army. For his conduct, he was awarded the Croce di Guerra by the Italian government. He resumed his education at Yale in 1919, graduating in 1921. Following graduation, Hutchins married artist and writer Maude Phelps McVeigh. The couple moved to upstate New York where Hutchins taught at the Lake Placid School until 1923. Together, they had three children. The marriage ended in divorce in 1948. Hutchins was remarried in 1949 to Vesta Sutton Orlick, and adopted her daughter.

Hutchins' career at Yale was nothing less than meteoric. He graduated from the Yale Law School in 1925 while also serving as Secretary of the University since 1923. He joined the faculty of the Law School in 1925, becoming a full professor in 1927. Hutchins' vitality and intellectual agility led to his appointment first as Acting Dean (1927) and then as Dean (1928) of the Law School. While at Yale, he was instrumental in creating the Institute of Human Relations, an interdisciplinary center for the legal, medical, and sociological study of contemporary social problems.

Hutchins' youth made his appointment as President of the University of Chicago something of a surprise, but according to Harold Swift, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, the search committee was concerned with finding an individual with the personality and the intellectual drive to fill the position. Hutchins' gregarious nature and his commitment to curriculum reform, evident at Yale, seemed to make him an ideal candidate to provide the kind of leadership and vision that the University had not had since President William Rainey Harper.

The initial years of Hutchins' administration were dramatic ones. He accepted and implemented plans for a general reorganization of the University that had been in the works since the administration of Ernest D. Burton (1923-25). These reforms were intended to simplify the administrative structure of the University, to promote interdisciplinary work among the faculty, and to redefine the undergraduate curriculum. The so-called "New Plan" or "Chicago Plan" created four graduate divisions—Humanities, Social Sciences, Physical Sciences, and Biological Sciences—and established a consolidated College as a separate division of the University. Additionally, Hutchins eliminated the University's varsity football program. Hutchins' major interest, however, was in the nature and goals of undergraduate education in general and the College in particular. Curricular reforms, with which his name has become more or less synonymous, emphasized the role of the College in providing general education grounded in philosophy and philosophical analysis. Impatient with the increasingly fine division of academic labor and the intensification of research specialization, Hutchins became an outspoken advocate of the value of general education. He lectured tirelessly on the meaning of college and seemed to relish his self-assumed role as a leading American educator.

Hutchins' candor and glibness, his self-confidence and (to some) his dogmatism were mixed blessings. The Walgreen investigations (1935) into possible subversive activities on the part of certain faculty at the University put Hutchins in the public eye as an eloquent defender of academic freedom against the claims of naive xenophobes. On the other hand, his style and opinions antagonized parts of the faculty who came to resent what they interpreted as arrogance and a sort of "party line" within the University. Their fears of Hutchins' power and their perception of the declining role of faculty governance at the University stood behind the Senate Memorial (1944) to the Board of Trustees. Protesting some of Hutchins' assertions about the role of the University in contemporary society, the Memorial coincided with widespread administrative reforms designed at least in part to more clearly define the respective roles of the President and the University Senate in the making of educational policy. Hutchins was appointed Chancellor of the University in 1945.

As a public figure, Hutchins championed a variety of issues and causes. Although he opposed America's entry into World War II, he cooperated with the government in the establishment of the Metallurgical Laboratory (1942) on campus as part of the Manhattan Project. Following the war, Hutchins was in the forefront of groups seeking to control the destructive potential of nuclear energy and to evaluate the broader implications of scientific research. He was sympathetic to the idea of a single world order (which he could trace to Thomas Aquinas) and in 1945 established, at the request of G. A. Borgese and Richard McKeon, the Committee to Frame a World Constitution. One year earlier he had been appointed chairman of the Commission on the Freedom of the Press. Funded by grants from Time, Inc. and the Encyclopædia Britannica (of which Hutchins had been a director since 1943), the Commission inquired into the nature, function, duties, and responsibilities of the press in America. It was particularly sensitive to the constraints on a free press in the contemporary world.

Controversial and opinionated, Hutchins served as President (and then as Chancellor) of the University longer than any other individual. He retired from the University in 1951 to assume an associate directorship of the Ford Foundation.

Hutchins tenure at the Ford Foundation underwent several metamorphoses. In 1954 he was appointed director of the Foundation's semi-independent fund, the Fund for the Republic. He reorganized the Fund in 1959 as the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, and moved its headquarters from New York City to Santa Barbara, California. He served as its chairman until 1974.

From 1943 to 1974, Hutchins was also chairman of the Board of Editors of Encyclopædia Britannica and a director for Encyclopædia Britannica, Inc.

Hutchins spoke and published frequently. He authored numerous books including No Friendly Voice (1936), The Higher Learning in America (1936), Education for Freedom (1943), The University of Utopia (1953), Some Observations on American Education (1956), and The Learning Society (1968).

Hutchins died in Santa Barbara, California on May 14, 1977.

Scope Note

The collection is organized into fifteen series:

I. Personal

II. Correspondence

III. Subject Files

IV. Yale University

V. University of Chicago

VI. Encyclopedia Britannica

VII. Commission on Freedom of the Press

VIII. Committee to Frame a World Constitution

IX. Ford Foundation, Fund for the Republic, and Center for Study of Democratic Institutions

X. Writings

XI. Honors and Awards

XII. Audiovisual

XIII. Books

XIV. Oversize

XV. Restricted

I. Personal: Contains material pertinent to Hutchins' early life - such as notebooks from his studies at Yale University - and to his death - such as memorials and obituaries. The series also contains interviews with and writings about Hutchins.

II. Correspondence: Contains the personal and professional correspondence of Robert Hutchins. Hutchins corresponded with an impressive number of 20th-century luminaries; persons represented here include Saul Alinsky, Steve Allen, Pearl S. Buck, Albert Einstein, T. S. Eliot, Hubert Humphrey, Oscar Hammerstein II, Aldous and Laura Huxley, Charles and Anne Lindbergh, Benjamin E. Mays, Thurgood Marshall, Edward R. Murrow, Paul Newman, the Rockefeller family, Earl Warren, and Frank Lloyd Wright. Of particular interest to researchers is extensive correspondence with William O. Douglas, Adlai Stevenson, and Thornton Wilder.

III. Subject Files: Consists of general subject files, arranged alphabetically by topic. Of particular note are files on the Atomic Energy Control Conference of 1945 and Hutchins' file on his negotiations with President Franklin D. Roosevelt about leading the National Recovery Administration in 1934.

IV. Yale University: Includes documents pertaining to Hutchins' employment at the University. Researchers seeking materials relevant to his education at Yale should consult Series I, Personal.

V. University of Chicago: Contains material pertaining to Hutchins' time at the University of Chicago including material pertaining to Hutchins' inauguration as President of the University of Chicago, correspondence with various journals published by the University of Chicago Press, Board of Trustees materials, press releases, and clippings files. Researchers interested in Hutchins' career at the University of Chicago should also consult the records of the University of Chicago Office of the President.

VI. Encyclopædia Britannica: Consists of material pertaining to Robert Maynard Hutchins' work as chairman of the Board of Editors of the Encyclopædia Britannica, from 1943 to 1974 and as director for Encyclopædia Britannica, Inc. Additionally, he was editor in chief of the 54-volume Great Books of the Western World (1952) and coeditor, from 1961 to 1977, with Mortimer J. Adler, of The Great Ideas Today. The bulk of the material in this series dates from the late 1950s to the early 1970s.

VII. Commission on Freedom of the Press: Contains correspondence, memoranda, reports, meeting materials, and clippings pertaining to Hutchins' chairmanship of the Commission on Freedom of the Press.

VIII. Committee to Frame a World Constitution: Includes correspondence, memoranda, reports, drafts, clippings, and other ephemera relevant to Hutchins' founding of and work for the Committee to Frame a World Constitution.

IX. Ford Foundation, Fund for the Republic, and Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions: Consists of a small amount of material pertaining to Hutchins' association with the Ford Foundation and the Fund for the Republic. This is followed by general administrative records for the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, as well as material for Center papers, discussions, conferences, and projects.

X. Writings: Contains material related to the development of Hutchins' published and unpublished written work. This includes notes, outlines, manuscripts and typescripts, correspondence, publicity, and reviews. The series is subdivided by type of writing: 1) General (bibliographic information, clippings, and notes); 2) Books; 3) Articles; 4) Speeches; and 5) Engagements. Subseries 5, Engagements contains speeches and other public talks (introductions, radio addresses, etc.), arranged in chronological order. This material was maintained separately by Hutchins from that in Subseries 4, Speeches.

XI. Honors and Awards: Includes certificates, diplomas, memorials, medals, medallions, and ephemera pertaining to awards and honors received by Hutchins.

XII. Audiovisual: Contains photographs, cassette tapes, audio reel-to-reel tapes, and one 33 1/3 record. The photographs are mainly of Hutchins at meetings and events. The audio recordings include speeches given by Hutchins, as well as interviews. Access copies for audio recordings in this series are not included. Researchers will need to consult with staff before requesting these items.

XIII. Books: Contains annotated books from Hutchins' personal library and loose-leaf notes found enclosed.

XIV. Oversize: Contains oversize materials including honors and awards, photographs, posters and broadsides, an issue of the Saturday Evening Post, and academic regalia.

XV. Restricted: Includes restricted personnel, financial, and student material. Materials in Subseries 1 are restricted for fifty years from date of record creation. Subseries 1 as a whole will be fully open in 2027. Materials in Subseries 2 are restricted for eighty years from date of record creation. Subseries 2 as a whole will be fully open in 2055.

Series II: Correspondence

This series contains the personal and professional correspondence of Robert Hutchins. The series begins with general incoming and outgoing correspondence with individuals and organizations (1920-1979), arranged alphabetically. This is followed by a set of carbon copies of Hutchins' outgoing personal correspondence ("Personal Pinks" and "Personal Yellows"). The carbon copies are arranged chronologically, as found. Carbons date from 1940 to 1959. Correspondence with persons and entities with whom there was an extensive amount of correspondence is arranged alphabetically by name at the end of the series. This set of correspondence makes up the bulk of the series.

Hutchins corresponded with an impressive number of 20th-century luminaries; persons represented here include Saul Alinsky, Steve Allen, Pearl S. Buck, Albert Einstein, T. S. Eliot, Hubert Humphrey, Oscar Hammerstein II, Aldous and Laura Huxley, Charles and Anne Lindbergh, Benjamin E. Mays, Thurgood Marshall, Edward R. Murrow, Paul Newman, the Rockefeller family, Earl Warren, and Frank Lloyd Wright. Of particular interest to researchers is extensive correspondence with William O. Douglas, Adlai Stevenson, and Thornton Wilder.

Series IV: Yale University

Series IV, Yale University, contains documents pertaining to Hutchins' employment at the University. Researchers seeking materials relevant to his education at Yale should consult Series I, Personal. Following the receipt of his B.A. and a stint teaching at the Lake Placid School, New York from 1921 to 1923, Hutchins returned to Yale to assume the post of secretary to the Yale Corporation. He simultaneously earned an LL.B. from Yale's law school in 1925, and taught courses in public service law, evidence, and code pleading. He was appointed acting dean of the Yale University School of Law in 1927, then dean of the law school in 1928. Materials are arranged chronologically.

Series V: University of Chicago

Series V, University of Chicago, contains material pertaining to Hutchins' time at the University of Chicago. This series is subdivided into two subseries: General and Publicity. The bulk of Subseries 1 is made up of materials pertaining to Hutchins' inauguration as President of the University of Chicago, correspondence with various journals published by the University of Chicago Press, and Board of Trustees materials. Materials in Subseries 1 are arranged chronologically. Subseries 2 consists of press releases and clippings files relating to Hutchins set up in part by the Office of the President and in part by the Public Relations department. Two sets of clippings have been preserved: one in chronological order and the other in alphabetical order by topic. Press releases on Hutchins issued by the Public Relations department administration are arranged chronologically at the end of this subseries.

Series VI: Encyclopædia Britannica

Series VI, Encyclopædia Britannica, contains material pertaining to Robert Maynard Hutchins' work as chairman of the Board of Editors of the Encyclopædia Britannica, from 1943 to 1974 and as director for Encyclopædia Britannica, Inc. Additionally, he was editor in chief of the 54-volume Great Books of the Western World (1952) and coeditor, from 1961 to 1977, with Mortimer J. Adler, of The Great Ideas Today. The bulk of the material in this series dates from the late 1950s to the early 1970s.

The series is divided into four subseries:

Subseries 1, General, includes records related to the Encyclopædia Britannica Educational Corporation, Encyclopædia Britannica Films, and the Great Books and The Great Ideas Today series. Materials are arranged alphabetically by topic.

Subseries 2, Correspondence, begins with general correspondence organized chronologically, followed by correspondence arranged alphabetically by correspondent or topic (as maintained by Hutchins).

Subseries 3, Board of Editors, is made up predominately of meeting materials including agendas, minutes, correspondence, and papers.

Subseries 4, Content Development, contains editorial conference materials, outlines, correspondence, and drafts of articles for inclusion in the Encyclopædia Britannica. "Roof article" was the term used by the Board of Editors to describe a series of articles conceived of in the early 1960s as a part of long-term editorial planning. The articles cover fifteen broad topics, (economic order, political order, world order, social order, education, religion, philosophy, nature, human nature, literature and the fine arts, technological order, logic and mathematics, communications, legal order, and medicine), and were intended to be dialectic, global, and prospective.

Series IX: Ford Foundation, Fund for the Republic, and Center for Study of Democratic Institutions

Series IX contains material relevant to Robert M. Hutchins' association with the Ford Foundation, the Fund for the Republic, and the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. Hutchins served as associate director of the Ford Foundation from 1951, and was president of the Foundation's Fund for the Republic beginning in 1954. In 1959 he founded the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara, California as the Fund's main activity, and served as its president for twenty-five years. During this time, the activities of the Center included publications, organized discussions, and public meetings about large issues faced by contemporary democratic society.

The series is divided into two subseries. Subseries 1, Administrative, begins with a small amount of material pertaining to the Ford Foundation and to the Fund for the Republic. This is followed by general administrative material for the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions such as meeting materials and correspondence. Subseries 2, Programs and Events, begins with material pertaining to papers, discussions, and conferences led by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions. This material is arranged chronologically and is followed by two groupings of material related to larger CSDI projects on the topics of education and law.

Series X: Writings

Series X, Writings, consists of material related to the development of Hutchins' published and unpublished written work. This includes notes, outlines, manuscripts and typescripts, correspondence, publicity, and reviews. The series is subdivided by type of writing: 1) General; 2) Books; 3) Articles; 4) Speeches; and 5) Engagements.

Subseries 1, General, contains bibliographic information, clippings, notes, and unidentified manuscript material.

Subseries 2, Books, contains notes, manuscripts and typescripts, proofs, correspondence, publicity, and other material relevant to Hutchins' books. This includes material for The Higher Learning in America; No Friendly Voice; Education for Freedom; The Conflict in Education; The University of Utopia; Freedom, Education and the Fund; Some Observations on American Education; The Learning Society; and Zuckerlandl (also a film).

Subseries 3, Articles, contains articles written by Robert Maynard Hutchins and published in newspapers, magazines, periodicals, and journals; his contributions to anthologies; and prefaces to other writers' monographs. It contains both printed publications and drafts (typescripts and manuscripts), as well as related correspondence. In addition to English, a few materials in this subseries are in German, Japanese, Norwegian, and Spanish. Hutchins' writings address an immense variety of topics. Highlights include early journal articles on legal science; writings on education policy, on the United States' involvement in the Second World War, and on atomic bombs; and a series of thirteen articles "Some Natural Tears" in the Chicago Daily News March-June 1951 upon his departure from the University of Chicago.

Subseries 3 is divided into two sub-subseries: 1) Articles and 2) Correspondence. Sub-subseries 1 is arranged chronologically. Folder headings include the main and alternative titles of the article, its original date of publication, and, if different from the date of publication, the inclusive dates of materials in the folder. Sub-subseries 2 contains correspondence related to Hutchins' published articles. It consists mainly of correspondence between Hutchins and readers regarding a series of articles published between 1937 and 1938 in the Saturday Evening Post; between Hutchins and the Los Angeles Times Syndicate regarding his columns in the Los Angeles Times 1963-1966; and between Hutchins and readers of the Los Angeles Times columns. Correspondences between Hutchins and the Los Angeles Times Syndicate also contain drafts of his columns. Each section of Sub-subseries 2 is organized chronologically.

Subseries 4, Speeches, contains speeches by Robert Maynard Hutchins, including addresses, commencement speeches, lectures, remarks, introductions of other speakers and guests, and radio speeches. It contains drafts, outlines, and notes (typescript and manuscripts); published materials based on his speeches; and correspondence related to his radio speeches. Highlights include commencement addresses at the University of Chicago; remarks at annual gatherings of faculty, trustees, and alumni of the University of Chicago; radio addresses on education policy and the United States' involvement in the Second World War; and speeches on war and education during the Second World War.

This subseries begins with speeches, ordered chronologically. Folder headings for speeches include the title, venue, and date of the engagement at which the speech was given, and, if different from the date of the engagement, the inclusive dates of materials in the folder. Correspondence related to Hutchins' radio broadcasts follows. This is mainly correspondence between Hutchins and the public regarding his radio speeches in 1935 on higher education and in 1941 on the United States' involvement in the Second World War. Carbon copies of Hutchins' outgoing correspondence regarding radio broadcasts are also found here and an index thereof. Correspondence is organized chronologically.

Subseries 5, Engagements, contains speeches and other public talks (introductions, radio addresses, etc.), arranged in chronological order. This material was maintained separately by Hutchins from that in Subseries 4, Speeches. Each speaking engagement has its own folder, including occasions on which Hutchins made extemporaneous remarks, and occasions when he gave a repeat delivery of an extant speech. For each speaking engagement, at least one slip of paper generated by one of Hutchins' secretaries after the fact, with the date, organization, location and title, if applicable, accompanies the other material. In cases of extemporaneous and repeat talks, often the slips are all there is. This is indicated in folder headings as "slip only." In other cases, the folders contain the texts of talks in various forms: notes, manuscripts, typescripts, carbons. Some folders also contain correspondence, event programs, or clippings. The folder headings give the title of the talks unless the talk was untitled, in which case the folder heading reflects the occasion or organization for which the talk was given. The foldering, arrangement, and retention of the slips follow the original filing system.
