Abstract Philip B. Kurland (JD'44 Harvard Law) spent the bulk of his teaching career at the University of Chicago Law School. A well respected and widely published expert in the field of constitutional law, Kurland often lent his expertise to the United States government. He acted as a consultant to the Senate Judiciary Committee during both the Watergate scandal and the controversial nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court. The Philip B. Kurland Papers cover many different aspects of Kurland's professional career: scholarly writings and research, teaching materials, extensive correspondence, and materials related to his recurring role as a constitutional consultant to the United States government. Additionally, Kurland kept extensive collections of press clippings - either pieces penned by himself or commentaries on cases and issues with which he was involved.

Biographical Note

Philip B. Kurland (1921-1996) took his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1942 and in 1944 graduated from Harvard University where he served as editor of The Harvard Law Review. Upon graduation, he clerked for Judge Jerome N. Frank of the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and subsequently for Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court. Kurland then worked for the Department of Justice and practiced law in New York City before accepting a teaching position with Northwestern University in 1950. Three years later, he joined the faculty of the University of Chicago Law School and there remained until his retirement in 1991.

Over the course of his career, Kurland served as a consultant to Congress on many different occasions. Usually called upon for his expertise in constitutional law and the Supreme Court, Kurland was involved in such highly-publicized affairs as Watergate and the Bork nomination. No stranger to controversy, Kurland also published widely on the Regents of the University of California v. Bakke affirmative action case and on the federal funding of parochial schools.

Kurland was also a renowned expert on the Supreme Court and founded The Supreme Court Review in 1960. He served as editor of the publication from its founding through 1988 and garnered praise from the legal community for publishing a journal whose content was deemed essential to the practice of law by lawyers and judges alike.

Kurland died in Chicago in 1996 and was survived by his wife, Alice Hoag Bator, and his three daughters, Julie, Martha, and Ellen.

Scope Note

The Philip B. Kurland Papers contain 74 linear feet of material and span 1943 to 1996, though the bulk of the materials were generated from the early 1950s to the early 1990s. Almost half of the collection consists of writings and lectures, while a third is made up of correspondence. The former series primarily contains reprint and typescript copies of publications and unpublished talks, some of which contain marginalia and editorial notations. The correspondence series contains some of the more noteworthy files of the collection, as Kurland corresponded extensively with congressmen with regard to Nixon's impeachment trials, the Equal Rights Amendment, and various other developments of historical interest. The Papers also house a collection of materials related to Kurland's work with the United States Government. These materials largely consist of legal briefs and statements delivered by Kurland to various Congressional committees.

Additionally, the Papers contain a small collection of teaching materials, primarily course readings, several writings penned by authors other than Kurland, a small assortment of documents related to the American Bar Association, and a limited number of materials pertaining to Kurland's administrative duties within the University of Chicago. Lastly, the Papers contain an extensive collection of press clippings, gathered by Kurland over the years. These include everything from interviews with Kurland, published pieces, letters to the editor, and reviews of his work.

The Kurland Papers are divided into twelve series, largely following the organization given to them by Kurland. Series I: Correspondence includes professional correspondence and related materials. Series II: Writings and Lectures, includes manuscripts, reprints and related materials. Series III comprises material relating to The Founders Constitution, particularly primary research materials. Series IV includes teaching materials and student papers. Series V contains a small amount of material relating to administration at the University of Chicago. Series VI collects files related to Kurland's work with the American Bar Association. Series VII includes correspondence and other materials related to Kurland's contact with legislators and other government officials. Of particular interest are the materials surrounding the impeachment of President Nixon. Series VIII collects reprints and manuscripts of writings by scholars other than Kurland. Series IX contains press clippings collected by Kurland throughout his career, including news, commentary and reviews of his work. Series X contains files on a variety of subjects, particularly Kurland's panel discussions and media appearances and bibliographic notes. Series XI contains oversize materials and Series XII files to which access is restricted.

INVENTORY

Series I: Correspondence

Kurland's correspondence files have been organized according to his own folder headings. Because Kurland often included non-correspondence materials in his correspondence files, folder headings include both the names of correspondents and the names of projects/cases on which correspondence with several individuals was based. For instance, items like "American Bar Foundation" in Box 1 appear throughout the series. The correspondence itself is varied. Kurland was in communication with a variety of individuals and organizations, from senators and fellow professors to the New York Times. Of particular interest in this series are the materials related to the impeachment of Richard Nixon. Kurland served as a consultant on the case and therefore much of his correspondence from the early 1970s pertains to the Watergate affair.

Series II: Writings and Lectures

This series includes both published and unpublished writings. For the most part, the published writings are included as reprint copies. The series is equally comprised of typescript copies of the many lectures that Kurland delivered throughout his career. In many cases, these lectures were later published - either as transcripts or as revised articles. Whenever possible, copies of both the talk and the published article have been included in the same folder. Of particular interest in this series are those materials related to both the nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court and the affirmative action case involving Paul Bakke's suit against the University of California. And again, files related to Watergate and the impeachment of Richard Nixon should be highlighted as well.

Series III: The Founders' Constitution

The bulk of this collection consists of primary research material, made up of files on historical and legal texts, as well as legal briefs, all of which relate to Kurland's book The Founders' Constitution. The arrangement of the collection follows the structure of the Constitution itself, with material on the preamble first, followed by the Articles (the largest part of the collection), and then the Amendments. After the Amendments is material for an Epilogue-much of which concerns the constitutional conventions.

Series VII: Government Activities

While several files in Series I: Correspondence contain materials related to Kurland's government activities, the bulk of these materials are housed here. The files are largely organised according to the act of legislation in question. Some are organised by correspondent, usually a public official. Most of the materials in this series consist of correspondence, copies of bills under consideration by Congress, and statements prepared by Kurland for Congressional committees. Of particular interest are the materials surrounding the impeachment of President Nixon.
