Biographical Note

Michael Chapman is a fundraiser, political advisor, and Menominee tribe official. Chapman's clients have included the National Congress of American Indians, the Institute of American Indian Arts, the Inter-Tribal Bison Cooperative, Americans for Indian Opportunity, Council of Energy Resource Tribes, First Nations Development Institute, and the American Indian Rights Fund. He has worked on tribal, state, and congressional political campaigns, and has also served in administrative and advisory positions in the United States Department of the Interior. An alumnus of Native American Educational Services College, Chapman went on to serve in an administrative capacity at the school, including work as assistant to the President, Trustee, and Chairman.

Scope Note

The Michael Chapman Papers form part of the archives of Native American Educational services, and contain government documents and publications dealing with the relationship between Native American communities and the United States government.

The collection has been organized into four series.

Series I: Government, includes copies of congressional and federal documents that detail funding and social relations with Native Americans, as well as materials from Native American conventions and conferences dealing with government relations. Much of this material deals with Native American communities' relations with the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the United States Department of the Interior. This series has been arranged alphabetically and then chronologically.

Series II: Education, contains materials related to Chapman's work in Native American education. This contains some information on the Pell Grant and the "Fast Start Team," but the majority of the series is taken up by documents related to the White House Conference on Indian Education, including resolutions and proceedings. This series has been arranged alphabetically and then chronologically.

Series III: Publications, contains books, photocopies of articles, reviews, and manuals by various organizations. Most are related to either technology or Native American relations. There are a large number of photocopies of newspaper articles regarding the Clinton administration's relationship with Native American communities. There are also files on IndianNet, an online database of Native Americans, and other technology-related products. This series has been arranged alphabetically and then chronologically.

Series IV, Restricted, contains materials related to student performance and personnel.
