Following the closure of the NAES College Library, the collection was transferred to the University of Chicago's Hanna Holborn Gray Special Collections Research Center.

Biographical Note

Rose Robinson (Rosabelle Lillian Wungnema) was born on March 27, 1932, in Kykotsmovi on the Hopi Reservation in Arizona. Daughter of Vina Jenkins and Percy Healling, she graduated from Carson City High School. After studying secretarial skills at the Haskell Institute (today Haskell Indian Nations College) in Lawrence, Kansas from 1948 to 1950, she started working for the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) office in Aberdeen, South Dakota. In 1951, she was transferred to the central office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington, D.C. In 1954, she married Richard H. Robinson, a British military member working in the British Embassy.

During her tenure at the BIA, Robinson first worked as a secretary to the Deputy Commissioner. Later, she moved to the Bureau's Indian Arts and Crafts Board, eventually becoming the editor of the Board's newsletter "Smoke Signals." In 1967, Robinson was promoted to a public information officer for the BIA and editor of the Bureau's Indian Record. Documents as well as publications from this stage of Robinson's career are represented in the collection.

In early 1970s, Robinson joined other Native American journalists to found the American Indian Press Association (AIPA). In addition to her role on the Association's board, Robinson was named the executive editor in 1973. AIPA had three purposes: to provide a news service to member newspapers; to help members improve the technical and editorial quality of their papers; and to provide a network for Native American journalists. In 1975, AIPA closed its doors largely due to the inability to raise funds. The Association's archival materials, including correspondence and Native American newspapers, were later entrusted to Rose Robinson and are preserved in this collection.

In 1976, Rose Robinson began working at the Phelps-Stokes Fund, a non-profit for the advancement of social and educational development. First as Director, then as Vice President of the Fund's American Indian Program, Robinson organized a foundation news service to help tribal communities and Native American education groups identify private funding. She also edited "The Exchange," a magazine that focused on fundraising efforts in the Native American community. Robinson's numerous activities at the Phelps-Stokes Fund as well as research and training materials on fundraising and non-profit management are well-documented in the collection.

From 1987 to 1989, she worked for the Evangelical Lutheran Church of America as Director of the Commission for Multicultural Ministries in Chicago. Later in her career, Rose Robinson founded her own consultancy, RRS Associates, and continued to provide consulting services to organizations and programs, such as American Indian National Bank, Council on Foundations, Gettysburg College, and Arrow, Inc.

Other organizations she served in varying capacities include American Indian Graduate Center, National American Indian Council, National Congress of American Indians, National Indian Education Association, Native American Science Education Committee, and North American Indian Women's Association. She also consulted for her native Hopi Pueblo tribe in a professional capacity. Her professional activities in these organizations are well represented in the collection. She also contributed to or led many conferences, such as annual conventions of the National Congress of American Indians, and workshops on fundraising and Native American advocacy issues.

In addition to her abovementioned role as journal editor, Robinson compiled the "Directory of National Congress of American Indians," co-edited "The Who, What, Why and How of Private Sector Fundraising," and published "Robinson's Redbook – A Native American Guide to Washington D.C." An unpublished manuscript titled "Red Indian Travels in West Africa" is preserved in the collection, documenting her trip to West Africa while working at the Phelps-Stokes Fund.

Rose Robinson's lifelong commitment to Native American social and educational issues was recognized by various honors and awards. She received the National Indian Media Woman of the Year in 1981. In 1983, she was honored by the National Congress of American Indians for her assistance to the organization's development efforts.

Rose Robinson divorced from her husband in 1974, with whom she had three children. She died on September 17, 1995, in Alexandria, VA.

After her death, Rose Robinson's papers were donated to the Native American Educational Services (NAES) College in Chicago as a research collection. Later, the collection was transferred to the University of Chicago's Hanna Holborn Gray Special Collections Research Center.

Scope Note

The collection is arranged in seven series. Where possible, the names of Native American peoples/communities used by Rose Robinson have been retained. Preferred names or spellings found in the National Museum of the American Indian's Culture Thesaurus and the University of Nevada, Las Vegas Library's Native American Names Cross Reference have been added in square brackets to enhance discoverability.

Series I, Personal, consists of items related to Rose Robinson's personal life, beginning with her high school commencement and including photographs and day planners. The folders in this series are ordered chronologically.

Series II, Correspondence, contains incoming and outgoing letters of Rose Robinson as well as the organizations she served. The folders are alphabetically ordered.

Series III, Professional, consists of documents related to or stemming from the organizations Rose Robinson worked for or served in various capacities. Divided into thirteen subseries, this series highlights Robinson's career and activism in Native American issues. The first eleven subseries, consisting of documents from major organizations Rose Robinson was directly affiliated with, are arranged alphabetically.

Subseries 1, American Indian Press Association, contains administrative documents, reports, meeting minutes, conference materials, subject files pertaining to AIPA's activities, as well as AIPA seal. The folders are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 2, Bureau of Indian Affairs, consists of journal and newsletter issues, manuals, briefings, BIA organizational documents, and other programs, in chronological order.

Subseries 3, Evangelical Lutheran Church of America – National Indian Lutheran Board, contains memoranda, minutes, brochures, and other subject files related to the Native American - Christian relations. The folders are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 4, Hopi Pueblo, contains legal and administrative documents, cultural program flyers, and resources on the Hopi-Navajo (Hopi Pueblo-Diné) land dispute. The folders are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 5, National American Indian Council, contains press releases, conference programs, and reports in chronological order.

Subseries 6, National Congress of American Indians, contains administrative documents, convention programs, briefings, and reports. The folders are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 7, National Indian Education Association, contains press releases, convention materials, and committee meeting minutes in folders that are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 8, Native American Science Education Committee/Association, is chronologically arranged and contains administrative documents, news releases, minutes, and memoranda.

Subseries 9, North American Indian Women's Association, contains administrative documents, resolutions, memoranda, and subject files. The folders are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 10, Phelps-Stokes Fund, is chronologically arranged and contains various administrative materials, conference and activity reports, booklets, and fundraising materials.

Subseries 11, RRS Associates, contains consultation documents, contracts and invoices, and research materials in folders that are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 12, Other Organizations, contains documents from other organizations with which Robinson was associated. The folders are arranged chronologically.

Subseries 13, Conferences, consists of documents related to various conferences Rose Robinson participated in or contributed to. The folders are arranged chronologically.

Series IV, Subject Files, contains research files and publications collected by Rose Robinson throughout her career on a variety of subjects related to Native American issues. The series is divided into thematically arranged subseries on Arts & Culture, Economy, Education, Environment & Nature, Government, History, Human Services, Law, Literature, Native American Periodicals, Other Publications and Clippings, People, Philanthropy & Non-Profit Management, Philosophy & Religion. Themes and subjects were determined based on Rose Robinson's original folder headings, as well as the NAES College Public Policy and Tribal Research Center Subject Index made available at <https://naes.info/>. The folders in these subseries are organized chronologically. Mention should be made of Subseries 10 that consists of numerous Native American periodicals from the early 1970s. Collected by the American Indian Press Association, these periodicals illustrate the history of Native American print media, whether local, regional, or national throughout the United States.

Series V, Audiovisual, consists of microfilm rolls of Native American newspapers and the rolls of three documentary films. These materials were produced for or commissioned by American Indian Press Association.

Series VI, Oversize, consists of a large map, a drawing, and a tote bag.

Series VII, Restricted, contains personnel documents that are restricted for fifty years from the date of creation.

Series IV: Subject Files

Series IV, Subject Files, contains research materials and publications collected by Rose Robinson throughout her career on a variety of subjects related to Native American issues. The series is divided thematically into subseries on arts & culture, economy, education, environment & nature, government, history, human services, law, literature, Native American periodicals, other publications & clippings, people, philanthropy & non-profit management, philosophy & religion. The folders in these subseries are organized chronologically. Mention should be made of Subseries 10 that consists of numerous Native American periodicals from early 1970s. Likely acquired by American Indian Press Association, these periodicals illustrate the history of Native American print media, whether local, regional, or national throughout the U.S. in that period.
