Biographical Note  Osborn H. I. Oldroyd (1842-1930) was a Civil War seargent, writer, and collector of Lincoln memorabilia. He enlisted in the 20th Ohio Volunteer Infantry in 1861, at the age of 19 and joined the Union Army at Camp Chase, Ohio in October of that year. During his time in the Grand Army of the Republic, Oldroyd kept a journal of military events and personal recollections. In 1885 he published portions of this under the title A Soldier’s Story of the Siege of Vicksburg. The text describes the 65 day Vicksburg Campaign, often considered the turning point in the Civil War, beginning with Grant’s arrival on the East bank of the Mississippi River on May 1, 1863 and concludes with the Confederate surrender of Vicksburg on July 4, 1863.
After leaving the G.A.R. in 1865 due to asthma-related illness, Oldroyd served as Steward of the National Soldiers’ Home in Dayton, Ohio.

Oldroyd married Lida A. Stoneberger in 1873 and the two had one daughter, Daisy Oldroyd. The family moved to Springfield, Illinois and rented the former home of Abraham Lincoln, which Oldroyd converted into The Lincoln Museum in 1884. On view was Oldroyd’s expanding collection of Lincoln memorabilia. After the Lincoln home was donated to the State of Illinois in 1893, Oldroyd moved his family and Lincoln collection to the Peterson House in Washington, D.C., where Lincoln died. He sold the 3,000 piece collection to the U.S. government for $50,000 in 1925. The government moved the collection to the Ford Theatre, where Lincoln had been assassinated.

Oldroyd published The Assassination of Abraham Lincoln in 1917. The narrative account of Lincoln’s death became a quick popular success.

Oldroyd died in 1930 at the age of 88.

Scope Note

The collection includes documents, images, and ephemera relating to Oldroyd’s life and work, and also contains items from his collections. The former category includes personal and professional correspondence, military documents, newspaper clippings, and ephemera, Lincoln memorial collection descriptions and print materials, and personal ephemera including journals and family histories. The other part of the collection consists primarily of political collection materials, including texts and prints materials about Lincoln, Ulysses S. Grant, and other presidents, election tickets, and a large collection of military figure and politician signatures.

The Oldroyd collection has been arranged into three series: Series I: Personal Papers, Series II: Collections, and Series III: Oversize. Series I is subdivided into personal correspondence, manuscripts, and correspondence regarding his involvement with the Grand Army of the Republic, publications, the Oldroyd Lincoln Memorial Collection, and ephemera. Series II is also subdivided into seven subseries that reflect his collecting areas of Lincoln, Grant, presidential ephemera and military and political figures. See subseries descriptions for further information. The oversize series includes oversize materials from the personal papers and collections series.
