Scope Note

The Sheet Music Collection consists of approximately 4,300 printed songs, folksongs, ballads, and piano music from the late 18th to mid 20th century. The materials are predominately English and American, but the collection includes songs of other countries, some of which are in different languages such as French or German.

The collection is divided into five series.

Series I: English Songs and Ballads consists of approximately 3,500 songs, which were published and performed in England. In most cases, English poets and composers wrote their lyrics and musical scores. The majority of these pieces were printed between 1830-1870, but the section spans 1785 to 1900. Their themes range from political satire to romantic love and are often directly informed by current events. Comic songs are generally associated with public performance in a popular music hall, and with a particular singer. This section also includes piano music without lyrics, the majority of which are dances (polkas and waltzes). Series I is divided into three subseries

Subseries 1, Lyricists, is organized alphabetically according to the name of the lyricist. Lyricists with at least four works in the collection are given a separate folder, located at the end of the corresponding alphabetical group. Many songs represent famous poems set to music, for example the verse of Byron, Keats, and Shakespeare.

Subseries 2, Composers, is organized alphabetically according to the name of the composer. Composers with at least four works in the collection are given a separate folder, located at the end of the corresponding alphabetical group. Some songs represent popularizations of operas by Donizetti, Rossini, or Verdi, for example; conversely, some are song arrangements based upon musical compositions by Mozart, Schubert, or Beethoven.

In some cases, the composer and lyricist are the same individual, (for example, "Claribel.") Occasionally, a recognized lyricist composed the music but not the lyrics, and vice versa. In such crossover cases, Parts I and II should both be checked. The same is true when there is frequent collaboration between a prominent lyricist and equally prominent composer: for example, Eliza Cook (lyrics) and Henry Russell (music) are extensively represented in their respective categories, both of which contain examples of their joint efforts.

Piano music (without lyrics) is also included in this group. The majority of these pieces are dances, especially waltzes and polkas, and the majority is identified by composer (Strauss, etc).

Subseries 3, Folk, National, and Anonymous Songs, consists of ballads, folk music, and national songs, most of which are anonymous. They are primarily from England, Scotland, and Ireland, but include France, Germany, Sweden, and the United States. Sacred songs and hymns are also included in this group.

In 1974, a detailed inventory was initiated, but not completed. As a result, however, several hundred items (primarily those whose lyricists' last name begins with "B") have been surveyed according to caption title, first line, first chorus line, music medium, pages of music, composer, lyricist, arranger, performer, illustrator, publisher, plate number, and cover description. These sheets are currently located in the Sheet Music Collection file, and may be consulted upon request.

Series II: Early 19th Century American Sheet Music includes 39 songs published in the United States in the first half of the 19th century. These materials are divided into two subseries.

Subseries 1, Song Sheets consists of songs published in Boston, New York, and Philadelphia.

Subseries 2, Piano and Harp Music contains piano and harp music (without lyrics) published in the United States. The majority of these items are dances.

Series III: The Lt. Joseph Starshack Collection of American Sheet Music contains 224 pieces of American popular music ranging from the late 19th century to the early 20th century, most from 1900 to 1910. The collection is organized alphabetically by song title. A complete item list is available in the Sheet Music Collection file and may be consulted upon request.

Series IV: Early 20th Century American Sheet Music contains approximately 500 pieces of American popular music from the early 20th century, published primarily between 1910 and 1940. This collection includes songs of a regional character, addressed to the Southern and Western United States (Alabama, Georgia, California), as well as a number of Irish ballads printed in the United States. Some songs address patriotic themes, particularly in relationship to World War I. Movie theme songs (for example, "The Tender Trap") and songs from musicals such as "Guys and Dolls" also appear in this collection. Popular entertainers and recording stars associated with these songs include Perry Como, Guy Lombardo, Patti Page, Frank Sinatra, and Rudy Vallee.

This collection is organized alphabetically by song title. The majority of these items are in poor condition.

Series V: The Midway Minstrel represents the repertoire of a male singing group named after the Midway in Hyde Park, Chicago. 314 popular songs appear in this collection, including a number of drinking songs (such as "Beer, Please," or "Budweiser's a Friend of Mine.")
