Biographical Note

Henry Calvert Simons (1899-1946) was born in Virden, Illinois on October 9, 1899. His father, Henry Calvert Simons Sr., was a lawyer by profession. His mother, Mollie Sims Simons, was a woman with great social and educational ambitions for her children. She sent Simons' older sister, Ella Simons [Siple], to Wellesley College and Simons to the University of Michigan.

Simons received his A.B. degree from the University of Michigan in 1920. He continued his studies at the University of Michigan and Columbia University, but did not receive a degree. In 1921, he went to the University of Iowa as a part-time Instructor and graduate student. He was appointed Assistant Professor at Iowa in 1925 and remained through the spring of 1927. It was here that Simons came under the influence of Frank H. Knight, who interested him in the Department of Economics at the University of Chicago.

In the summer of 1927, Simons came to the University of Chicago, as a Lecturer in Economics. He was appointed Assistant Professor in October, 1928. Simons had previously completed his graduate coursework in economics at the University of Chicago. Despite his many later contributions to periodical literature in the field of economics, he never submitted the necessary dissertation to receive the Ph.D. degree. This lack of formal credentials undoubtedly hampered Simons' academic career at the University of Chicago—he was not appointed Associate Professor until October, 1942. However, except for part-time consulting services to the Departments of Justice and Treasury during World War II, there is no indication that he ever sought employment anywhere else.

Simons' formal (and informal) education was enhanced by studies in Germany during 1928. Upon his return to Chicago, he published four book reviews and a famous Syllabus Materials for Economics 201. In 1934 Simons' A Positive Program for Laissez-Faire was published by the University of Chicago Press as Public Policy Pamphlet No. 15 and he became an instant celebrity. Personal Income Taxation followed in 1938. The remainder of Simons writing career was devoted to book reviews and monographs. An additional treatise, Federal Income Taxation was published posthumously along with Economic Policy for a Free Society, a book of reprinted monographs edited by Aaron Director.

In 1939, Simons was assigned to teach, in the University of Chicago Law School as part of a continuing interdisciplinary program in law and economics. Simons' appointment as Associate Professor in 1942 was considered to be "two-thirds in the Economics Department and one-third in the Law School". This divided assignment was continued until July 1945 when he finally achieved the rank of Professor.

After years of a bachelor existence at the University of Chicago Quadrangle Club, Simons married Marjorie Kimball Powell in 1941. The Simons had one daughter, Mary Powell Simons, born January 27, 1944.

In 1941, Simons listed his "academic fields of special interest" as economic theory, money and taxation. His "recreational interests" were tennis, fishing and gramophone. He considered himself somewhat of an authority on classical music recordings.

Throughout 1945 and 1946 Simons suffered from failing health, mainly in the form of insomnia and stomach ulcers. On the morning of June 19, 1946, he was found unconscious and died later the same day apparently of an overdose of sleeping tablets. There is no evidence in Simons' papers that his death was not accidental.

Scope Note

The Henry C. Simons Papers are divided into seven series.

Series I: Correspondence includes Simons' correspondence with personal and academic acquaintances, government officials, publishers, newspapers, associations and individuals affiliated with these organizations such as newsmen, editors, officers, etc. Because Simons' professional interests were so often pursued in the context of personal relationships and academic and social activities, no attempt has been made to distinguish between personal and professional correspondence except insofar as the University of Chicago institutional policy memoranda and related correspondence are included in Series II. University Policy Memoranda. Correspondence with Simons' estate is included in Series V: Biographical Documents.

General correspondence is filed alphabetically by the name of the correspondent. Corporate correspondent names are used for most periodicals, newspapers, publishing houses and some organizations. Individuals representing institutional correspondents are cross indexed with the respective principals.

The overwhelming bulk of correspondence consists of typewritten letters between Simons and the correspondents and is listed in the index in an abbreviated form. All other correspondence material is fully described. Thus, letters not otherwise identified were written by the correspondent to Henry C. Simons. All correspondence material is typewritten unless otherwise identified in the index.

Manuscripts and publications written by correspondents are included in their respective correspondence files whenever they are of no great length and/or are referred to in other items in the file.

Series II: University Policy Memoranda is divided into three subseries. Subseries 1: University (Educational) Policy includes a number of letters and memos surrounding a controversy over University of Chicago faculty contracts in Spring of 1944, an unpublished manuscript entitled "Some Comments on University Policy" and correspondence concerning a proposal for an "Institute of Political Economy". "Some Comments on University Policy" is an informal but comprehensive discussion of Simons' personal education philosophy.

The "Institute of Political Economy" is a proposal for an institutional structure which would preserve and promote the "traditional-liberal political philosophy" of "Chicago economics". Simons succeeded in interesting F.A. Hayek (SEE Series I: Correspondence, von Hayek, Friedrich A.), a noted economist, in his proposal. In 1945/46, an attempt was made to bring Hayek to the University of Chicago to found and administer an institute combining Simons' proposal with Hayek's proposals for an international "Academy for Political Philosophy". The scheme never materialized and Simons' proposal was dropped at his death in June 1946.

Subseries 2: Economics Department includes memos regarding specific faculty appointments, faculty politics and complaints as well as some comments on student work.

Series III: Lectures and Speeches includes both typewritten and manuscript drafts of speeches and other public presentations given by Simons.

Series IV: Unpublished Manuscripts contains a number of relatively short essays, memoranda and other miscellaneous writings in various stages of completion. Much of this material is untitled and/or undated. These papers have been divided into two Subseries 1: Literary Works (Drama and Poetry) and 2: Economics and Policy. Because many of Simons' writings fall into more than one of these categories, references are made to the most frequently overlapping topics. All manuscripts are typewritten unless otherwise indicated in the individual entry. Articles published in mimeographed form are found in Series VI. Published Manuscripts.

Series V: Biographical Materials contains miscellaneous biographical documents, news clippings, photographs, recordings and transcripts of interviews, manuscript biographies and correspondence regarding Simons' estate and posthumous publications. The interview was recorded November 16, 1972 as part of an effort to obtain and preserve information concerning Simons' childhood and early adult life.

Series VI: Published Manuscripts includes reprints and both typescript and manuscript drafts of documents published by Simons.

Series VII includes letters of recommendations for students. Access to these files is restricted for 80 years from the date of each file.

This guide to the Simons Papers was compiled by Clara Ann Bowler, Journal of Law and Economics, University of Chicago Law School, and revised and expanded by staff of the Special Collections Research Center.

POTTER, ALDEN A.

- This file contains 27 pieces of correspondence dating from April 18, 1943 to May 29, 1946. Most of the pieces are carbon copies of letters sent by Alden Potter to other people and forwarded to Simons by Potter. There are ALSO carbon copies of three letters from Simons in response to Potter's enclosures, dated August 8, 1944, September 12, 1944 and January 24, 1945, respectively. Because this material is somewhat incoherent, no further attempt has been made to identify individual letters.
